SUGGESTIONS ARE HELPFUL

Throughout the year—but probably more often during the approach of Christmas, gift suggestions are welcomed; and in this connection the service of newspaper advertising is beneficial to seller and buyer alike.

Thus the newspaper fills the part of a directory which enters the home daily.

There is nothing stale about it; it guides in the trend of Fashion and gives a faithful indication of progress in every industry.

Between now and Christmas, many thousands of people will scan the pages of the Telegraph, and many of them will be delighted at the gift suggestions it contains.

FILMLAND NEWS

Comparison of British and American Studios

WHERE U.S. SCORES

With 25 years' experience of production on both sides of the Atlantic, Wilfred Noy makes some interesting comparisons between British and American studio conditions in an article in the Kinema magazine.

My first glimpse of Hollywood in 1923, he says, demonstrated unmistakably how far the Americans were ahead.

With over 20,000 theatres in their own country, and enormous foreign markets, they had been able to conceive the making of pictures upon a vastly wider scale, and to allow far greater expenditure on individual subjects. This fact had acted like a magnet to draw every conceivable type of man, were he prospective writer, director, cameraman, or technician, into the business and to grow up with it.

America thus developed an army of experts in all departments, to draw upon as occasion required.

I do not suggest that mere expenditure was the secret of America's success. A quite modest film as regards settings and size of cast is often a "best seller." But where the money must be spent is in a first-class personnel, from the highest executives down to the humblest assistant.

BRITISH ADVANCE.

When I returned to England I found an even greater revolution had taken place here. I was amazed at the advance of British pictures. What struck me even more forcibly was that many British studios were technically just as well equipped as those I had been working in on the other side.

But while there are plenty of fine studios to choose from in making a picture the question of personnel is a more difficult matter. There are first-rate men, of course, in all branches, but they are not so easy to lay one's hand on as in Hollywood where technical experts are more or less centred in one locality and can be reached easily and speedily.

Once assembled I found our British technicians a splendid working team: America could teach them nothing in keenness or enthusiasm. I look to the day when we shall have sufficient men trained to our own highest standard to turn out an average of pictures every bit as well made as anything produced elsewhere.

Surveying current British pictures I am convinced that the great need of British studios is to add to their fine equipment and skilled technicians a body of writers and directors able to develop this wonderful medium in a fashion still undreamed.

In stories, freshness of treatment and originality of ideas I believe the British Empire is even now ahead of all others.

But we must assist and encourage new writers for the screen. Not necessarily authors who have made their names in other fields and are possibly not adaptable to a new technique, but promising men who have not yet had their chance.

I should like to see also a little more vision in the choice of directors. Here I know there is a greater element of risk in employing fresh blood; but this is greatly reduced if an experienced associate producer is there, standing by to control and advise during the initial effort. Young enthusiasm united to solid experience is not a bad combination for successful progress.

HOLLYWOOD ROMANCE ENDS

Marjorie Crawford, film actress (no relation to Joan Crawford), has been granted a divorce at Los Angeles from her husband, "Danny" Dowling, the dancer.

The marriage of the couple four months ago was one of the most unexpected even in Hollywood, where unexpected things are a daily occurrence (says Reuter.)

Originally Dowling, who was

IF YOUR SKIN IS DRY

A woman whose skin is abnormally dry needs our sympathy in cold weather. It is so difficult for her to avoid a weather-beaten appearance. When the wind is in the east she looks pinched and cold and old. Wrinkles make their appearance when she is quite young unless she takes great precautions, and the skin of her neck and hands tends to become shrivelled. Sometimes even her hair grows harsh and brittle too. The remedy is plenty of fat, taken internally and applied externally. She should eat a lot of butter and cream, if she can afford it, drink milk, eat eggs, and see that she has suet puddings and fat bacon and meat. A course of cod-liver oil will do her a great deal of good too. Then she must be very liberal with cold cream. Not only must she smear cold cream over her face, neck, hands and arms every night, but she should rub cold cream on her hands in the daytime after they have been in water, and use cold cream instead of a vanishing cream on her face before she goes out. It is an easy matter to wipe off the surplus with a soft tissue or old clean rag, and take away the shininess of the skin by dusting it well with powder. She should never venture out in cold weather without this protection of cream and powder. Sometimes cold cream is not enough, and almond oil or olive oil must be used to anoint the skin at night. Either of these oils when warmed is most valuable for massaging into the scalp with the tips of the fingers. It feeds the roots of the hair and takes away excessive dryness. Hard water is conducive to dryness of the skin, so if you want to keep your skin soft and unlined, and the water in your district is hard, you must soften it. Use bran when washing clothes or dishes, and use little bags of oatmeal or bran to soften your bath water. Use rain water when you can.

dancing partner of Joan Crawford, was charged with kidnapping Marjorie Crawford. She said he had forcibly abducted her under threat of death, and she had escaped marrying him only by feigning illness. He said he had motored to Arizona with Marjorie Crawford to get married at her request. Then, in the middle of the proceedings, it was announced on May

COLOUR FILM COMING

KORDA'S LATEST ADVENTURE

The probability that film production in colour is very much more imminent than many people suppose is borne out by the latest news from Hollywood and Elistree.

In America, where the success of the short Technicolour picture, "La Cucaracha," has been one of the more notable events of the fall season, the last of projected colour features has recently been strengthened by the addition of Russia's "Becky Sharp," with Miriam Hopkins in the title role.

At home, British International Pictures plan to use colour sequences in their film, "Radio Romance of 1935," and Alexander Korda, the head of London Films, announces that as soon as his new season opens in April he will start production on a full-length colour picture, probably "Lawrence of Arabia." It is quite on the cards that he will also use colour for his projected film of the life of Nijinsky—a subject which seems to be ideally suited to the new medium.

PROCESS

The system adopted by London Film is a newly invented British process known as Hillman Colour-gravure, produced by the Gerrard Industries, and Mr. Korda is so much impressed by its possibilities for commercial film-making on a large scale that he has himself joined the Board of Directors. Hillman Colour-gravure is, I understand, a three-colour process which is relatively cheap to use, and will cost the producer very little more than ordinary monochrome photography. The subject is shot on one strip of film, and depends for its effect on the use of a small gadget attached to the ordinary cinema projector. This gadget may be purchased outright by the exhibitor for something between five and ten pounds, or hired along with the film.

The greatest difference between Colour-gravure and other colour systems, so far as the studio is concerned, is probably the fact that it requires only a negligible increase over the amount of lighting used in ordinary black-and-white photography. Hitherto the actors in colour films have had to work under conditions representing at least a 300 per cent. increase in the normal studio lighting, with the result that colour tones have faded, make-up has run, and the overheads have assumed almost fantastic proportions.

That the two had married. Eventually the charges against Dowling were dismissed.

NEW GROUSE AGAINST CINEMAS

Cinemas have been blamed for many things, but here is a new one.

They are responsible—or partly responsible, at least—for the fact that the people of Great Britain are eating fewer herring, kippers, and blonsters!

That is the opinion of fishmongers, who blame the cinema, palaces de danse, modern flats and tinned foods. In other words, they say the blonster or kipper for tea has gone out of fashion because the modern housewife has not the patience to cook when she and her family want to rush off to the cinema. It is easier to open a tin.

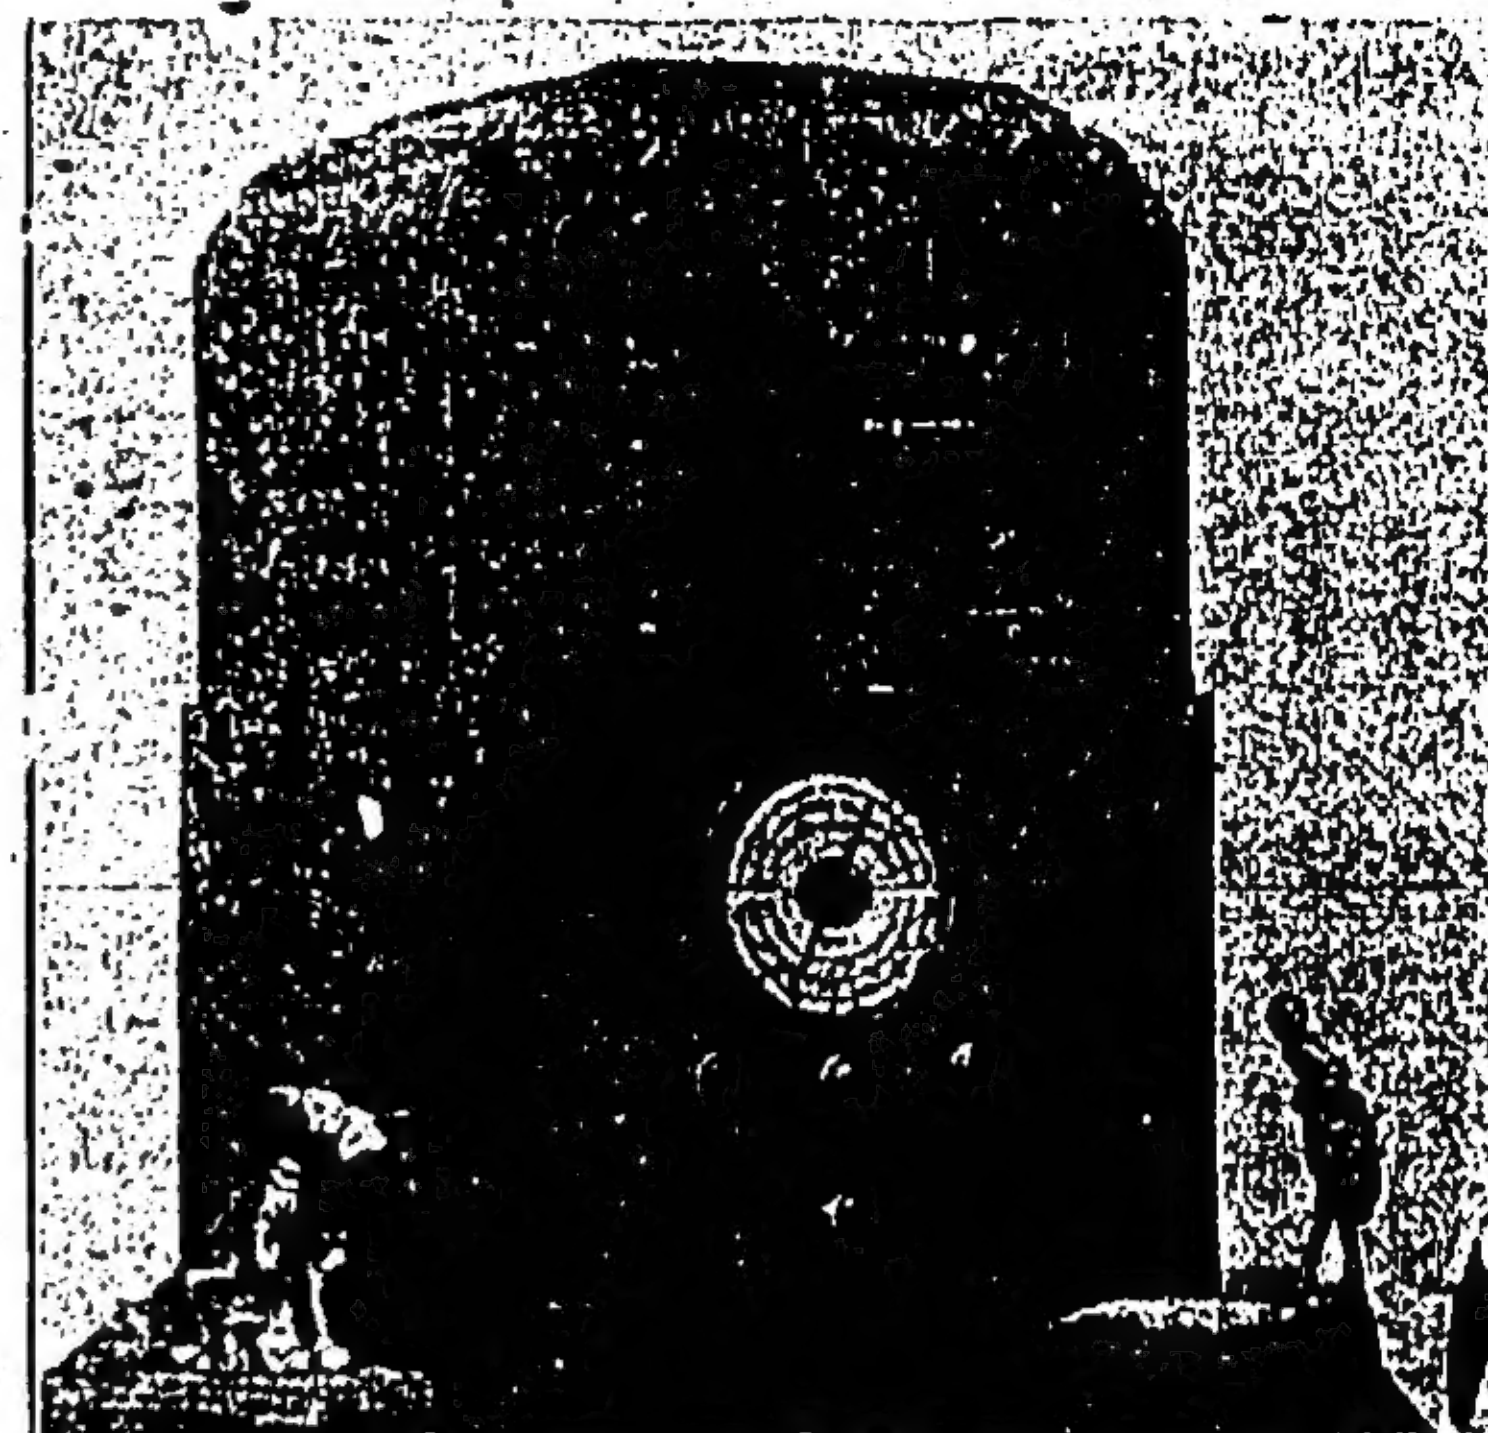

CLEMENCE DANE TO WRITE PLAY

Clemence Dane, the British novelist, has arrived in Hollywood.

She is under contract to write a screen play (says Reuter), and she expects it will be a screen version of Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina."

David Selznick will be the producer, and Greta Garbo the star.

END OF ENGLAND'S SLUMS IN SIGHT

GOVERNMENT SPEEDING PRODIGIOUS WORK

Although the country is right behind the Government and Sir Hilton Young, the Minister of Health, in their crusade to end slumdom, there have of late been instances, in the Press and on the platform, of uninformed and misleading criticism of the way adopted and the rate of progress which is being achieved.

The simple, irrefutable facts about what is being achieved, together with revealing figures, which Mr. Geoffrey Shakespeare, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry, was able to put forward on behalf of his chief, Sir Hilton Young (in the Minister's absence on a tour in the North of England), in a special interview with a representative of The Observer recently, will therefore be welcomed.

"One accusation," Mr. Shakespeare said, "is that because 12,000 houses have been built in eleven months our campaign has failed. As well say that because Ponsford and Brown have made only 40 runs in the first hour of a Test match, the most difficult period, the side cannot make 500 runs.

"We realised at the Ministry, when the National Government came in, that the slums were not being tackled. Between 1890 and 1932 only 20,000 slum houses had been demolished. Then, in 1933, we issued our great appeal to the local authorities to tackle their slum problems within five years. From the start the Minister realised that the problem could not be tackled effectively without a survey, and we appealed to the local authorities to survey their individual slum problems. There had been no drive behind Mr. Greenwood's survey in 1930, and it did not help us. For instance, whereas 76,000 houses were estimated in 1930 by 145 authorities to be slum houses in response to Mr. Greenwood's appeal, the same authorities gave to us a figure of 172,200.

RECONNAISSANCE

"We adopted the old military principle that time spent on reconnaissance is never wasted. The survey we made fully justified our expectations. The White Paper was issued in March, 1934, and the campaign really started last spring.

"The clearing of the slums must of necessity be a somewhat slow process, particularly in the first year. With your programme in front of you, and working as quickly as possible, it takes about a year for a local authority to deal with a particular area. Legal and administrative action under the machinery of the 1930 Act, even though it be speeded up, takes about a year, and nobody but a fool expected many houses to be built in the first year of our five-year plan. Actually more houses have been built in the first year than we anticipated.

"Our five-year programme is to demolish 281,417 houses, of which 67,000 will be dealt with as individual houses, and the balance as houses in slum gear."

FOUR STAGES

"There are four stages in the clearance of slums. There is the resolution passed by the council in respect of a clearance area, there is the order submitted by the council in respect of the area, there is confirmation of the order by ourselves after due inquiry into the state of the property and to see that justice is done to the owners, and, fourthly, there is approval for re-housing, the granting of which means that nothing can stand in the way of the required houses being built.

"The Ministry estimate that the intake per month must be about 3,500 houses in respect of each of these four processes. During the last six months the average has been well maintained, and, latterly, exceeded. For example, 27,000 houses have been included in the second stage (orders submitted) in the six months ended September 30—an average of 4,500 a month. So that the annual rate of the submission of orders is 54,000, more probably, because acceleration is occurring all the time. The acceleration has been nearly four-fold compared with a year ago, and the acceleration increases all the time.

"As regards re-housing, the final stage, in the six months ended September 30, 22,000 replacement houses were approved, which gives a rate, with no more acceleration, of 44,000 new houses. These figures show that in the second year of the campaign not fewer than 40,000 houses will be built, with the rate of building accelerating all the time, and the peak will not be reached until the third year, when the amount of houses built will be nearer 70,000.

MAINTAINING AVERAGE.

"Take another test. To maintain an average of 50,000 houses a year, on the assumption that a house takes between seven and nine months to build, at any one moment 30,000 houses must be under construction, to give 50,000 completed

EXPANSION OF INDUSTRY

ENORMOUS SOVIET MOTOR FACTORY

Moscow, Nov. 10.

The Soviet Government will have the largest factory in the world for the manufacture of motorcars in 1937, it is claimed here, if its present plans for the enlargement of the existing Stalin plant, formerly the Amo works, in Moscow, are realised.

The Stalin plant now covers 225 acres, but its area after the reconstruction already started will be 1,250 acres. Its output of 31,000 trucks and buses a year will be increased to 100,000 trucks, buses and passenger cars, and the personnel will expand from 25,000 to 70,000.—United Press.

60,000 ACRES BOUGHT FOR A FEW KNIVES

This, the copy sent to the Colonial Office, is written in a scholarly hand and begins in due form, "Be it known to all persons that we, Jagajaga Jagajaga Jagajaga, being the principal chieftains, and also Bungee Yanyan (...there are several others...), being the chiefs of a certain native tribe being possessed of the tract of land hereinafter mentioned, and in consideration of 20 pairs of Blankets, 30 tomahawks, 100 knives, 50 pairs of scissors, 200 handkerchiefs, 100 pounds of flour, 6 shirts, and

A copy of the Treaty by which John Batman bought from the Australian Aborigines 600,000 acres of what is now Victoria for a parcel of blankets and knives is at present on view in the Public Records Office. Though not the original, it is the chief document in an exhibition arranged in connection with the Melbourne centenary. It is accompanied by a map showing "the site for a township" very near the present site of Melbourne. Where the original is to be found is obscure, though it is, or was, in the British Museum. Similar payments to be made in subsequent years, sell the tract hereinafter mentioned. The chieftains made their mark at the bottom of the paper. Three of them had the same name, but it is not quite clear whether they made the same mark. The copy has rendered it in each case as three syllables slightly varied and concluding with a cipher; four marks for each chief. Were they recognised marks, or did the copyist stylise the path of an aimlessly wandering pen?

John Batman's treaty was sent to the Colonial Office in 1835. The treaty was not recognised by the New South Wales Government, and the real beginnings of Melbourne did not come till 1837. But 1934 is still an appropriate centenary year, for it is the anniversary of the forming of the Port Phillip Association which started a Tasmanian and ended in the foundation of a capital city.

Alongside John Batman's documents we are shown a map of one of the first journeys into Victoria. The explorers were a certain W. H.

EXPLORING AFRICA

An expedition has left Budapest under the leadership of Dr. Laszlo Benda, with the object of exploring unknown ground in north-east Africa. From Tripoli the expedition will travel to the mountain Tibesti, and then to Lake Tsad, where it is hoped that the problem of this lake's connection with the Bahr el Jebel may be solved.

Hovell and Hamilton Hume, who set off in 1824 from Lake George, New South Wales. Their map is like a wedge thrust into unknown country. They began by crossing mountains and then met a river which, says the map, is a hundred yards wide. So they crossed over and called it after Hume. They found at first rich alluvial plains and promising land. Then mountains cross their path. They are a long way from Lake George now and tired. They call it Disappointment Range. Mountains in front, impenetrable jungle on the flank, but they get through somehow and reach "Port Phillip called by the native Jillong." They ended their journey at the sea and, had they but known it, by the city of what was to be the capital of the new continent.

Flood, tornado, and earthquake combined in an assault on Los Angeles and suburbs to leave death and wreckage behind. This picture shows the torrent raging through a city street, with water up to automobile humpbacks. Six dead, and others are still missing; a ship was sunk; houses unroofed; and heavy loss caused by the flood waters in business buildings.

SHAM AIR RAID

COLONY'S DEFENCES TESTED
BY "HOSTILE" PLANE

The Colony's defences against air raids were tested last night, when searchlights and sound detectors at strategic points were brought into play to locate an aeroplane of the Far East Aviation Company, acting as the enemy.

Flight Lieutenant W. T. Murray, of the Far East Aviation Company was the pilot of the Avro Cadet machine used, and although he was compelled by the heavy clouds to fly low to make the experiment successful, the general result was entirely satisfactory.

At 7 p.m. the No. 10, typhoon signal was sounded, three maroons being discharged from the Naval Dockyard and rockets being fired from the Peak, to announce the commencement of the raid. Street lamps and conspicuous lights were extinguished and the island and mainland were plunged into darkness except for house and ship lights and the occasional appearance of the moon.

The police reserve were called out on special duty to help control traffic during the ensuing hour.

The invader first made his appearance from the east and was quickly picked up at Lyceum Pass and held by the searchlights until he made off to the west.

Attacking from the south, the plane was again located against a bank of clouds, and powerful beams radiating from Mount Austin Barracks, the Naval Yard, East Point and Stonecutters kept it in view.

Several more approaches were made from different directions. After the flight, the pilot spoke of the smartness with which he was picked up and said he had no chance of evading observation. The experiment was a very successful one and would probably be repeated later in the week.

Capt. Foley of the Royal Engineers was in charge of land operations and among the interested spectators was Squadron Commander Tang Chi-hau, who with air force officials of the Canton Government had made a special trip to witness the sham raid.

The party returned to Canton by the night boat.

HIS FIRST STEPS.

The child's first months and years
are usually the most difficult, especially if he is backward in development, lacks appetite, has irregular elimination, fails to gain weight as he should.

Often the conscientious mother is worried almost ill by these problems.
Yet in many cases the solution is right at her hand if she but knew of it.

In Baby's Own Tablets innumerable mothers have found just what was wanted to start the backward little one right off on the road of regular progress. The prescription of an eminent medical child-specialist
these Tablets quickly correct infantile stomach and bowel troubles, thus banishing constipation, aiding digestion, removing the causes of colic,
vomiting, flatulence, diarrhoea.

They allay teething pains almost
as if by magic, reduce feverishness,
ease colds and croup, expel worms,
soothe the nerves and bring calm, restful health-giving sleep in a perfectly natural way. Baby's Own Tablets are guaranteed absolutely pure and safe even for the youngest infant. Of chemists everywhere.

PIGS AND POULTRY

A concise but essentially constructive report has been issued by the Committee appointed to advise on practical steps for improving and extending the breeding of pigs and poultry in the New Territories. Two most desirable purposes will be served if the recommendations made are followed by appropriate action. In the first place, two industries of real value will be developed, to the manifest advantage both of those engaging in them and the consuming public; and, secondly, this Colony will be placed on a more self-supporting basis in the supply of the necessities of life. The extent to which we are dependent on outside sources is shown by the fact that some 350,000 pigs, valued at ten million dollars, are imported every year, whilst three million dollars' worth of live poultry and about two million dollars' worth of eggs are brought in every year. The production for purposes of local consumption is only an infinitesimal percentage of these figures. It is obvious, therefore, that there is ample scope for the development of both industries. At the present time, the breeding both of pigs and poultry in the New Territories is carried out on most haphazard lines, with little, if any, organised method. Apart from the innate conservatism of the breeders, poverty is the main factor in hindering development. In the case of pig-breeding, long before the animals are ready for slaughter they pass through numerous hands, each raking off a little profit, simply because the original breeders have not the wherewithal to keep them for fattening and are consequently forced to sell in order to raise a little ready money. There is thus great need, if what should be a paying industry is to be properly developed, of some scheme of credit facilities being devised in their interests. Similar considerations apply in the case of poultry, and, in both industries there is need for more scientific methods both in breeding and in the battle against disease. The Committee recommends a modest beginning in plans for improving the position, starting with the appointment of an expert in husbandry and later leading to the creation of a small Farm Board which would co-ordinate the agricultural activities of the Colony. Such a step,

NOTES OF THE DAY

THRIVING BUSINESS

Everyone knows that thousands of dollars, bags and boxes full of Chinese silver, are being smuggled out of China daily. According to a most reliable source this Chinese silver money is pouring into Hongkong in a steady stream, at the rate of approximately $1,000,000 a day. The theory is that it is re-exported, either to England or America. The reason for this flight of Chinese silver is obvious. The value of the metal in the dollar is greater than the value of the dollar itself, due to the fact that China has succeeded in preventing an advance in the value of her currency in proportion to the price rise of the metal. China placed an embargo on silver exports. Hence the activity of certain "merchants" who smuggle coins out of Chinese seaports. As long as this price discrepancy remains, so long will the drain on China's silver resources continue. And unless something is done to check the smuggling the situation will become increasingly embarrassing. It may even be dangerous. The supply of Chinese silver is not inexhaustible.

GERMANY'S ROAD

There is a suggestion, according to cable reports, that all is not well with the Nazi regime in Germany. There are mutterings among the Storm Troopers. Apparently they are incensed by certain restrictions placed upon them by Herr Goebbels, the Minister of Propaganda, and against General Goering, the Premier of Prussia, who is alleged to have been responsible for much of the "blood-letting" in the party last June. At the same time, there are alarmist reports published in Paris that the German army of 1935 will muster five and a half million men within a few days of mobilisation, that the armaments factories are speeding up their output and that a powerful air force can be put into action at a moment's notice. Then, too, there is the problem of the Saar, a potential menace to the peace of Europe, to bother the Hitler administration. It is a hard road the Third Reich travels, and the responsibility of his office must weigh heavily upon Herr Hitler. There are many who doubt this man's ability. But if he succeeds in overcoming the trouble within and if he avoids a clash beyond the German frontier during his tenure of office, he will be worthy of acclaim. Even though he fails to do these things it will be no proof that Hitler's genius is not genuine. The world should judge a man by what he tries to do, and the world is watching Hitler.

HITLER'S MISTAKE

It begins to look as if Herr Hitler made one of the major mistakes of his career in seeking to extend his influence to the pulpits of German churches, however. A man's political beliefs can be changed or silenced; his feelings on economic and social problems can be overridden or disregarded; but when you begin trying to coerce him in the field of religion, you are apt to stir up a great deal more trouble than you can handle. The German people accepted most of Herr Hitler's innovations docilely enough, but his interference in church matters has brought him nothing but criticism and defiance. What sort of omen all this may be for the future of Nazi rule is a question no man can answer just now. It is a safe guess, however, that the dictator would be very glad to find some way of dropping this issue—since it turned out to be so much "hotter" than he had expected.

coupled with the suggested improved means of communication by linking up outlying villages with the main roads, should greatly assist the attainment of the ends in view. Something has already been done in recent years, thanks to the advent of motor transport and schemes sponsored by the New Territories Agricultural Association, to improve marketing facilities, but much more is still possible in this direction. Bearing in mind the extent of the demand locally for pigs, poultry and eggs, it is self-evident that there is a huge market at the very doors of the New Territories breeder. If only he can be induced to adopt modern methods and is assured of some measure of financial assistance. The first necessity is to secure the services of an expert adviser on the subject, and, once he is engaged, the whole question can be explored in all its aspects and appropriate steps taken to meet local needs. The Government's sympathy with the project seems assured, and it is therefore to be expected that the Committee's proposals will be put into effect without undue delay.

GIANT AIRCRAFT TO SPAN PACIFIC

By A. EDDY

It was announced on Monday in the Hongkong Telegraph that Pan-American Airways would shortly send a giant Sikorsky flying boat across the Pacific as an experiment in connection with the proposed trans-Pacific air mail passenger service. It is believed that the big machine will take off from Los Angeles for Hongkong early in the New Year.

The Brazilian Clipper, which is scheduled to visit Hongkong in the beginning of next year, a few weeks ago completed one of the most significant commercial flights in the history of aviation, flying from Miami, Florida, to Buenos Aires in five days, clipping two days from the fastest travel time between Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and the United States.

The inaugural flight of the Brazilian Clipper to Buenos Aires was in the nature of a trade mission in order to improve inter-American relations for the mutual commercial advancement of the United States and Latin America, and its nineteen passengers included Mr. Eugene Vidal, Director of Air Commerce of the United States, representing the U.S. Government, Mr. Roy Howard, Chairman of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, and executives of the United Press, Associated Press, Hearst papers, Chicago American, Baltimore Sun, North American Newspaper Alliance, and Mr. J. T. Trippe, President and General Manager of the Pan-American Airways, and others.

The city of Rio de Janeiro and the people of Brazil exhibited unusual interest in the great Clipper, and the Presidents of both Brazil and Uruguay attended the colourful ceremonies the following day when Senhora Vargas, wife of the President of Brazil, formally baptized the aerial giant and dedicated the great ship to the service of humanity and welfare of the Americas. Describing the significance of the maiden flight of the Brazilian Clipper and likening its present flight, and its trade significance to the early trips of the glorious old time sailing "clippers," Mr. Trippe expressed his deep appreciation for the support the Brazilian Government has given to the development of international air service and renewed the Pan-American pledge of unceasing effort toward the furtherance of friendly ties and commercial relations between the American nations.

A demonstration unparalleled in enthusiasm greeted the Clipper in B.A., as Buenos Aires is familiarly called. An official holiday was declared and all business suspended in order to enable the gay South American city to welcome the flying boat. The party was immediately swept into a programme of official entertainment which included a reception by the President of Argentina, Sr. Justo, at Government House, and a banquet at which Captain Marcos Zar, Director of Naval Aviation of Argentina was host, at the American Club.

After two days spent in Argentina, the Brazilian Clipper started on its return flight to the North American continent after a visit which, the Argentine press had stated, far surpassed in positive results all the "good-will" missions of recent years between the United States and Argentina. The Brazilian Clipper reached Miami on the fifth day after leaving Buenos Aires and covering the distance of 1,900 miles between the South American and North American continents in 12 hours, thus enabling the passengers who were in Port of Spain, (Trinidad, British territory) on Thursday, to breakfast in New York on Friday.

Despite the restricted transport conditions under which the flight was made, the Brazilian Clipper accomplished the approximate 7,500 miles southward run in 55 hours, and the northward run in 47 hours flying time, the entire journey of approximately 15,000 miles occupying 16 days with two days stop in Rio and B.A. For the entire flight an average speed of 155 miles was maintained against wind conditions which were for the most part unfavourable.

Before the Brazilian Clipper had undertaken the South America flight it shattered all existing world records for transport seaplanes which were previously held in Europe, when she carried some time in August last, a full transport load and flew 1,242 miles non-stop at an average speed of 167.5 miles per hour, on its final acceptance test at the Sikorsky factory in Bridgeport, Connecticut.

The above account is the gist of a report describing the B.A. flight of the Brazilian Clipper, in the last issue of the Pan-American Airways Magazine.

Since its inception in 1928 up to July 31, 1934, the planes of the Pan-American Airways carried 307,995 passengers and almost 17 million pounds of mail and cargo and there is no doubt that Hongkong, figuring in the Trans-Pacific Airway System as the Gateway to China, a country occupying one twelfth of the surface of the globe and harbouring within its confines more than one fifth of the entire human race, is destined to derive incalculable benefits as one of the most important airports of the world.

"You know all their expensive furniture. I understand that is all that's keeping them together."

The Very Idea!

BLUE WOMEN
By George

NOW is the time for all of us to contribute something new and useful for the New Year and, so that nobody can say we didn't think of it first, we are going to advocate police women for Hongkong.

Say what you like about it, the idea is a good one. The first time we met one of these blue coated Circes in Piccadilly we fell for her.

There's something peculiarly solid and domestic about 13 stones of female in goldfish flicking gracefully at the precocious pedestrian with her truncheon as she surges along.

We already have our Eva—what about our Eve?

We ourselves can imagine nothing nicer than being arrested at midnight by one of these graceful girls and sinking dreamily into her safe custody.

Of course she might take us to the station—what a call!

But we are convinced that many a romantic heart beats beneath the cheap serge affected by those bobby-haired, red-lipped vamps and that a large golosh would forsake the straight and narrow for love's rosy path.

As Lord Trenchard said to the female recruit: Life is not a bed of roses. Get your man—even if you have to arrest him.

We spoke to one policewoman before coming out East. She was holding up a quarter of a mile of traffic on Tottenham Court Road while she powdered her nose. A few buses crept by every time she changed hands but we calculated on ten minutes or so before our bus would be able to get by.

"Can you tell us the way to the British Museum?" we asked in Cantonese Cockney.

"Never heard of it," she replied blandly and changed hands. A couple of cars crept by before she realised her error.

"Don't you get tired of holding up traffic all day?" we asked ingratiatingly.

"I'd get more tired of holding a baby," she replied with a gesture of dismissal which afforded escape to a lorry and brought our bus five minutes nearer.

She turned the blue eye of the law on us and whispered thickly, "If you think you can make a fool of me you're mistaken. You're holding me up now. Get along!" There was nothing else for it so we tickled her under the arms till our bus got alongside and jumped in.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

"Hide-out" the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, coming on Saturday to the Queen's Theatre, is heralded as one of those wholesome film productions which leave a lasting impression on those who see it. It deals with a happy-go-lucky post-appeal racketeer who, believing he has everything ahead of him for his life-time money without working for it, romance and pleasure comes to his senses after he has been driven from New York by the police, only to find real love and happiness in a rural environment. The picture is said to be crammed with all of the excitement of Big Town life and the purity and simple existence of a rural community. As "Lucky" Wilson, the playboy, Robert Montgomery has a made-to-order role. Reluctantly he is compelled to find a country hide-out to evade arrest and to recover from a bullet wound, but he soon becomes entranced with the country when he meets Maureen O'Sullivan, cast in the role of a farmer's daughter. Prominently cast in "Hide-out" is Edward Arnold, who will remember to his recent seen portrayal in "Sadie McKee" in which he played Joan Crawford's philandering husband. In the role of Mrs. Miller, Elizabeth Patterson is seen. The picture serves as the debut of one of the stage's finest character actors—Whitford Kane. Mickey Rooney, 12-year-old boy actor, and said to be one of the film colony's most talented child actors, plays the role of the young farm lad, Willie Miller, whose antics and mischief add considerable humour to the picture. Others in the large supporting cast include C. Henry Gordon, Muriel Evans, Edward Brophy, Henry Armetta, Herman Bing, Louise Henry and Harold Huber. The picture was filmed by the well-known director W. S. Van Dyke. "Hide-out" marks Robert Montgomery's first film appearance since "The Mystery of Mr. X." Miss O'Sullivan was last seen in "The Thin Man".

"I've Got Your Number" the widely heralded Warner Bros. picture dealing with the romance of the telephone, is the feature attraction at the Alhambra Theatre to-day. The screen play by Warren Duff and Sidney Sutherland pictures in sweeping panorama the vital activities of telephone employees in their contacts with the public, and with each other. It dramatizes the colourful incidents of every-day life to the throbbing pulse of human emotion. The picture is said to touch on every phase of life behind the scenes of telephone operation, revealing its laughter and love, its tragedy and thrills. The story is in fast tempo and the dialogue unusually snappy and witty of action and a great deal of suspense, wind, ing up with a smashing climax in a terrific battle with a band of robbers and kidnapers. Joan Blondell heads a large and talented cast of players in the role of telephone operator who is used as a cat's paw by the crooks and lands in jail as their accomplice, only to be extricated by Pat O'Brien, who plays opposite her as a trouble shooter for the telephone company, a self-confident, swaggering person equally successful in smashing the hearts of fair ladies and gangster's heads. Glenda Farrell, Eugene Pallette, Allen Jenkins and Hobart Cavanaugh, comedians par excellence, supply much of the comedy angle, aided and abetted by Miss Blondell and O'Brien. Gordon is the principal mind of the confidence men while others in the cast include such sterling actors as Henry O'Neill, Renee Whitney, Wallis Clark, Robert Ellis, Charles Wilson and Clay Clement. Ray Enright directed.

"Many Happy Returns" George Barbier, who specializes in excitable father roles, admits that his role in "Many Happy Returns" could never be improved upon. In the picture, which opens to-day at the Queen's Theatre, Barbier is cast in the role of the much-harassed father who has ever had to portray the dad of Grace Allen. The picture features Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadiana, George Burns and Gracie Allen, the famous "nitwits of the network" who have recently appeared in "We're not Dressing" and "Six of a Kind" Barber, heading the supporting cast, returns from a trip to Europe to find that his daughter, Gracie, is more eccentric than he thought possible. To get her off his hands, he pays George Burns to marry her. But even that did not put a stop to Barber's trouble, and it was only the start of George's "Many Happy Returns" was directed by Norman MacLeod from the screen play by J. P. McEvoy and Claude Binyon.

"Madame Du Barry" Dolores Del Rio, after years of playing leading film roles, is now a full fledged motion picture star. Her beautiful Mexican girl who leaped to film fame in the First National picture, "Joanna," with Dorothy Mackaill, afterwards reaching top success in her characterization of "Charminne" in "What Price Glory," has attained stardom as the Countess Du Barry, favourite of King Louis XV, in the Warner Bros. production of "Madame Du Barry," which is scheduled to open at Alhambra Theatre this week-end. Du Barry is her ideal role. The gay, beautiful French aristocrat, the favourite of Louis XV had an exciting time of it during her unofficial reign of the French Court, and her adventures have been carefully and authentically adapted to the screen by Edward Chodorow. Miss Del Rio will have a superb supporting cast in the picture including Victor Jory, Verree Teasdale, Osgood Perkins and Reginald Owen.

"To The Last Man" Zane Grey's latest roaring outdoor romance of the West, "To The Last Man," today at the King's Theatre, holds the undivided attention of the audience, as such a genuinely thrilling adventure drama should. Rapid action, tender love, jealousy, primitive hatred and a family feud passing through three generations are the principal elements of the story, which is literally peppered with gun-fire. A wisely selected all-star cast, comprised of Randolph Scott, Esther Ralston, Buster Crabbe, Jack LaLue, Noah Beery, Fuzzy Knight, Muriel Kirkland, Barton MacLane and Gail Patrick, interprets the story, based on an actual Arizona feud. The principal players do a splendid job in giving the picture that quality of realism to which such a plot is entitled.

"Romance in the Rain" One of the most topical, romantic and tuncful comedies of the year is coming to the King's Theatre on Friday when "Romance in the Rain" will be screened. It's fast, breezy and colourful, providing more mirth than in a circus sideshow. Roger Pryor, who became a star in "Moonlight and Pretzels" is featured in this film, with Heather Angel, Victor Moore, of the New York struts, Esther Ralston, Ruth Donnelly, Christian Rub, and many others. Never has there been such a delightful comedy, served with such beautiful girls, romantic romances and disappointed lovers. It's all clean fun and entertainment.

LOCAL SOCCER

Several Postponements For Saturday Next

Several postponements are notified for next Saturday's local football programme the most notable being the match between the Club and the Navy in the First Division. The match between the Club de Recreo and the Kowloon Football Club has also been re-arranged. In the place of these two postponements it has been arranged that the Royal Navy and the Club de Recreo play off their match originally fixed for March 3. This game will be played on the Kowloon Football Club ground commencing at 4.15 p.m. In the Second Division the following matches arranged for Saturday next

BASKETBALL

Wah Yan College Win Senior Shield

After a keen and exciting match, Wah Yan College on Tuesday afternoon beat Wah Kiu College in the final for the Senior Basketball Shield. Both teams had been previously unbeaten, so that the excitement was intense. Every possible point of vantage round Blake Gardens, where the match was played, was occupied. The final whistle went with Wah Yan leading by 11 points, the full-time score being 27-16.

have been postponed:—Hongkong Football Club v. South Wales Borderers, University v. Chinese Athletics and Eastern v. Kowloon Football Club.

Interport Shoot

Colony Bad Last In Triangular Match

Hongkong finished a bad last in the Triangular Interport Rifle Shoot which has been won by Shanghai who compiled a grand total of 968 points against Singapore's aggregate of 954.

Shanghai fired last week, when their ten counting men averaged 99.5.

Twelve men shoot, but only the ten best scores count. The only rifle allowed to be used is the short magazine Lee-Enfield .303. The ranges are 200, 500 and 600 yards, one eighth and seven scoring shots at each range.

Hongkong fired on November 4 last, and registered a total of 988 points. Shanghai's detailed scores were as follows:

	200	500	600	Total
1. A. Mottu	81	84	84	249
2. H. Berglof	82	84	84	250
3. W. Glover	82	84	84	250
4. H. Francklin	82	84	84	250

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

Y.M.C.A. SENIORS BEAT ST. ANDREW'S

N. A. E. Mackay, who usually plays in the forward line, made his debut as goalkeeper for St. Andrew's Club against the European Y.M.C.A. first eleven in a friendly hockey match played at King's Park yesterday afternoon. The Y.M.C.A. won by one goal to nil. Mackay was never really tested and had luck with the shot that did enter the net.

The Y.M.C.A. commenced with only eight men, having to rely on two forwards, W. J. Brown and A. L. Henry. It was during this period that Brown found the net with a shot scored from a difficult angle.

G. H. Fowler, R. A. Bates and S. Fowler arrived during the first half and completed the Y.M.C.A. line-up. The Saints' forwards, with the exception of the opening minutes of the game, never looked like becoming dangerous and attacked very seldom. Farmer, at centre-half, and Sommer, at right-back, repulsed the Saints' forward line, Farmer putting in some good clearances.

F. A. Broadbridge and E. H. P. White, the Saints' backs, both played hard in the defence. Frequent offside by their forwards prevented several Y.M.C.A. attacks from materialising.

Radio Win
In a friendly match between

RUMJAHN AND MRS. CHIU PASS INTO SECOND ROUND

Fourteen couples have entered for the Colony Mixed Doubles Tennis Championship this year, and the draw, which was made at the Chinese Recreation Club last evening, gives promise of some very interesting matches.

H. D. Rumjahn and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chui and L. Goldman and Miss R. Hancock move through into the second round without opposition. Both these pairs are strong contenders for the title.

E. C. Fincher and Miss O. Dalziel, another pair who will need close watching, meet Paul Kong and Miss Cheung Woon-wai in the first round.

The complete draw was as follows:

FIRST ROUND
Lee Wai-tong and Miss Ellen Tsao v. T. A. Pearce and Miss H. Haycock.
E. C. Fincher and Miss O. Dalziel v. Paul Kong and Miss Cheung Woon-wai.
H. T. Armstrong and Mrs. P. P. Whitlam v. Capt. E. Manners and Mrs. E. Grimble.
Lieut. C. Ravenhill and Miss Conder v. W. C. Hung and Miss M. Griffith.
B. A. Gray and Miss A. Mackenzie v. Mr. and Mrs. Ho Ka-lau.

SECOND ROUND

L. Goldman and Miss R. Hancock, by.
H. D. Rumjahn and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chui, by.
The first round of the championship has to be completed before December 15.

The Radio Sports Club and the Hongkong Police played on the Police Training School ground yesterday the Radio won by one goal to nil. Play was fast and exciting both sides pressing in turns.

M. H. Hassan, the Radio centre-half scored from a pass from Kitchell in the first half. After this interval the Police forwards showed better combination and tried hard for the equalizer but the Radio intermediate line proved the main stumbling block. For the Police, Perkins at centre-forward played a sterling game while the Radio was best served by Hassan and Kitchell in defence. Awtar Singh and M. de Souza, a promising new player on the right flank, were the pick of the forwards.

PONSFORD RETIRES

Testimonial Match In Melbourne

Melbourne, Nov. 20. When the next cricket test matches between England and Australia are played, Australia will take the field without the services of Woodfull, Ponsford and O'Reilly.

Woodfull announced his impending retirement some time ago. O'Reilly announced his withdrawal from first class cricket a few weeks ago and Ponsford stated to-day that he would not longer be available for first class matches.

Ponsford's announcement was made at the conclusion of a testimonial match to Woodfull and Ponsford for their service to Australian cricket. The match was played between teams captained by Richardson and Woodfull. Woodfull's team won by seven wickets.

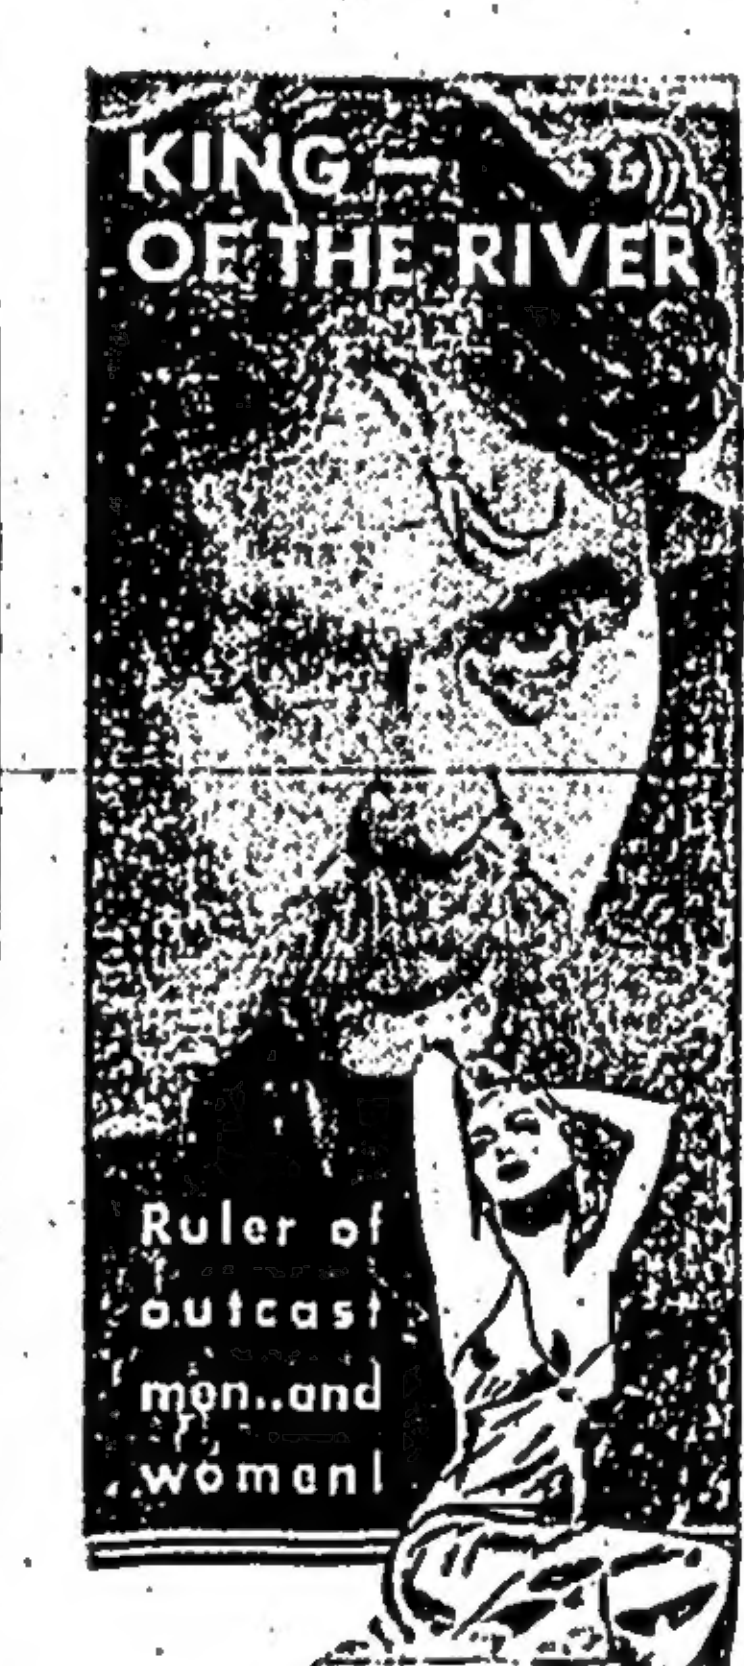

Batting first, Richardson's Eleven scored 196. Grimmett took five wickets for 64. Woodfull's team replied with 316 (Woodfull 111, Ponsford 83). In their second innings, Richardson's men did much better, putting on 899. Richardson top-scored with 107 and Grimmett again took the majority of wickets, finishing up with four for 108.

Woodfull's team carried their score to 280 for three wickets. Brown made 102 and Ponsford 48.—Reuter.

SERIAL STORY

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

When DAN BEEKER, publisher of The Blade, learns that CHARLES MORDEN, police reporter, has been mysteriously killed he determines to employ SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

MORDEN had been assigned to cover all the news about FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, who had threatened to sue The Blade because the newspaper reported that CATHAY had been arrested. Later it was proven that the man arrested, giving the name of CATHAY and accompanied by a girl called MARY BIRCH, was an impostor.

The Blade published a retraction. Then MORDEN found dead and a few hours later came news that CATHAY is dead—possibly poisoned.

SIDNEY GRIFF undertakes the case. He calls on CATHAY's doctors and then goes to see CHARLES FISHER, CATHAY's friend and lawyer.

CHAPTER XIII

GRIFF had been listening to the lawyer intently. "How long," he asked, "was this reporter in River-view?"

"Just a day I think. Perhaps not a day. I don't know. He made some investigation and made some comments. He spent most of his time in the office of The River-view Chronicle, a newspaper, by the way, which has been hostile to Mr. CATHAY's political candidacy for membership in the city council."

"Did that man," asked GRIFF, "call on you, counselor?"

"On me?"

"Yes, certainly not. He was collecting evidence which would have a tendency to undermine my client's reputation. Naturally, he would hardly have called upon me."

"You didn't know him then?"

"No."

"Perhaps then," said the criminologist, "you entirely missed the significance of the account in The Blade this morning of the murder of one of its reporters."

CHARLES FISHER gripped the edges of his desk. His head was thrust forward. His eyes fastened upon the criminologist, and gradually grew wider and wider.

"Good heavens!" he said. "You don't mean to tell me... it can't be... it isn't... that is, it wasn't the same man?"

GRIFF nodded.

CHARLES FISHER got slowly to his feet. He mopped his forehead with a handkerchief, regarded GRIFF with wide, startled eyes.

"Good heavens!" he said.

"Now," said FISHER slowly, "I can understand your interest in the matter. I understand who is employing you."

GRIFF remained silent.

The attorney looked at his watch, went to the window and stood with his back to GRIFF, looking down at the street. He turned at length to the criminologist.

"Has the newspaper," he asked, "any idea of the motive for the murder?"

GRIFF shrugged his shoulders.

"Really, counselor," he said, "I can't tell you just what the newspaper knows or what it suspects."

CHARLES FISHER made clucking noises with his tongue against the roof of his mouth and shook his head from side to side, after the manner of one who has heard most disagreeable news.

"This," he said, "is very likely to complicate the situation, to complicate it most dreadfully."

GRIFF got to his feet.

"Well," he said, "I've enjoyed meeting you, counselor. I just dropped in to say hello. This is Saturday and I presume you'll observe the usual half holiday."

"Is there," asked FISHER with a forced attempt at his old cordiality, "anything I can do to assist you, Mr. GRIFF, which will not in any way conflict with my professional obligations to my clients?"

GRIFF smiled at him.

"I think not," he said.

The two men shook hands.

GRIFF went at once to a public telephone, called the office of Dr. P. C. COOPER and explained to the nurse that it was quite important that he talk with Doctor COOPER upon a personal matter.

A moment later he heard Doctor COOPER's voice on the wire.

"This is GRIFF, Doctor COOPER," he said, "the criminologist who called on you earlier this morning."

"Yes," said Doctor COOPER in a tone that was calm and wary. "What is it you wish, Mr. GRIFF?"

"I just wanted to tell you," GRIFF said, "that I have been in communication with the counsel who is representing Mrs. FRANK B. CATHAY, and that the Cathays are planning to have you cited before the medical board because of the statements you made concerning symptoms of Mr. FRANK B. CATHAY."

"Yes?" said Doctor COOPER in the tone of voice one uses in asking a courteous question.

"Yes," GRIFF said, "and I just thought, Doctor COOPER, that if a post-mortem should disclose that your diagnosis was correct and that of Doctor AMATEAD incorrect, it might go a long way toward eliminating the necessity for any defence upon your part."

GRIFF ceased talking and held the telephone to his ear. For a moment there was only the buzzing noise of the wire. Then Doctor COOPER's voice said in the same cautious, thoughtful tone, "Thank you."

There was a click at the end of the line.

GRIFF slipped the receiver back on its hook.

SIDNEY GRIFF's taxicab deposited him at the wide entrance to the Cathay mansion. GRIFF inspected the well-kept grounds, the huge building which, despite its magnitude, seemed to blend in with the grounds with such perfect harmony. The building looked as though it might have grown there.

"You want me to wait?" asked the cab driver.

"Yes," GRIFF said, and started up the long cement walk which led from the porch on the front of the house.

He had almost reached the porch when the door opened and a tall man with broad shoulders and a slight paunch which bulged out his waistcoat stepped with quick vigour from the house and turned sharply to the right, walking across the porch to the stairs which led to a driveway that came from the garage.

GRIFF called a low comment:

"Hello, Racine," he said. "You going to pass me up?"

The man whirled at the sound of the voice. His eyes stared at SIDNEY GRIFF with an expression of quick recognition which speedily gave way to wary appraisal. He turned and walked back toward GRIFF with a leisurely manner. The quick, purposeful vigour of his stride was now entirely absent.

GRIFF watched him with eyes that twinkled with amusement, yet were cautiously watchful.

"Business here, Racine?" he asked. CARL RACINE stood with his feet planted slightly apart, his big shoulders squared, his eyes staring steadily at the criminologist.

"Business here, GRIFF?" he asked mockingly.

GRIFF nodded. "Yes," he said. "I want to see Mrs. CATHAY."

"Hardly a fine for social visits," Racine pointed out.

GRIFF shrugged his shoulders in a polite gesture of dismissal.

"After all, Racine," he said, "that is a matter for Mrs. CATHAY to determine. If she has been able to see CARL RACINE of the Racine Detective Bureau she doubtless will be able to see me."

"Perhaps," Racine said.

There was a moment of silence.

"I wonder if you can tell me just what angle of this case you're working on?" Racine asked.

"How many angles has it?" GRIFF countered.

Racine frowned impatiently.

"Oh," he said, "I'm just a square-jawed dick. I can't match wits with you if it comes to a matter of being indefinite in conversation. You don't have to tell me if you don't want to, but don't be so damned superior. Either you're a very smart human, you know, even if you are SIDNEY C. GRIFF, the great criminologist."

GRIFF said nothing. His eyes held a twinkle of amusement.

"I thought," Racine said, "that you might like a chance to pool information on this."

"Sure," said GRIFF, "that's fair enough. You start off. You tell me something, then I'll tell you something."

"That's a bargain," Racine said. "Who are you working for?"

GRIFF's laugh was almost sarcastic. "So that was the way you wanted to pool information, was it, Racine?"

A smooth running motor slid into view, stopped where the side steps of the porch met the driveway. The Cathay chauffeur slid from behind the wheel, opened the rear door of the car and stared steadily at the two men.

"There is," said GRIFF musingly, "something strange about that chauffeur, Racine. Turn around and take a look at him. He wears the livery of a servant but notice the expression on his face. He's evidently very much irritated because we're talking together."

Racine did not turn, but he straightened abruptly and his tone became formal.

"He's in a hurry," he said. "He's under instructions to get me to a certain place. I've got to start. Goodbye, GRIFF."

Racine crossed the porch with long strides. The chauffeur stood at rigid attention, his face a mask. As the detective entered the car, the chauffeur slammed the door, turned to face SIDNEY GRIFF.

"You can't see Mrs. CATHAY," he said, jerking open the front door of the car. "He did not wait for a reply, nor did he turn back for any instructions from the detective."

(To Be Continued.)

In the next instalment GRIFF calls on Mrs. FRANK CATHAY, beneficiary of her husband's million-dollar insurance policies.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

I want to clear up the king and queen showing of the Sims three-bid to-day. While it is true, you may not hold many three bids, when you do have one, you do not want to miss obtaining the maximum result.

The Sims three-bid should be made when the hand contains not more than three losers with a major suit as trump. The first suit named is the suit at which the final contract must be played.

In to-day's hand, South opens with three spades. The partner

♠ J 10 8 5	♥ Q 4	♦ 7 6 5	♣ K 10 2
♠ A K 10 7	♥ A 9 8 6 3	♦ A 9 8 7 3	♣ A Q J 6
♠ K J 9 4	♥ K 5	♦ K 5	♣ A Q J 6
♠ D 7 4	♥ D 6	♦ D 6	♣ D 6

Duplicate—A: vulnerable.

South West North East
3 ♠ Pass 3 N.T. Pass
4 ♠ Pass 5 ♠ Pass
5 ♠ Pass 5 ♠ Pass
6 ♠ Pass 5 ♠ Pass
Opening lead—♥ K.

Now, when South bids four clubs, he is asking his partner if he holds the king of clubs. Holding the king of clubs, North's proper response is five clubs. South's bid of five diamonds is asking for the king of diamonds. Without it, North simply bids five spades.

Suppose South's holding had been the ace, king, and jack of diamonds. He had already located the king of clubs and would now like to know about the queen of diamonds. After North's bid of five spades, denying the king of diamonds, South would bid six diamonds, asking for the queen.

If North held the queen, he would bid seven diamonds and the final contract would have been seven spades.

In to-day's hand, South has shaded his three-bid a little, but it seems rather justified, due to the fact that, if he can locate the king of clubs and the king of diamonds, he has a possible grand slam. So I do not criticize South for shading his bidding.

The Play
The play of the hand is not difficult. Still, a careless player would fail to make his contract. It looks as if South has two losing diamonds, because, when the seven of diamonds is led from dummy, East will play the ten.

But why worry about missing the diamond? The opening lead of the king of hearts marks West with the ace of hearts.

All the declarer has to do is to trump the first heart trick, take three rounds of trumps, and four rounds of clubs, winning the last club in dummy, then lead the queen of hearts and discard the losing eight of diamonds. This gets rid of your loser and eliminates the necessity of taking a finesse.

Now West is forced to lead a diamond into the ace-queen. If he leads a heart, the declarer will trump in on hand and discard the losing diamond from the other.

Today's Contract Problem
South is playing the contract at six spades. West opens the jack of diamonds. How should the hand be played to make the contract?

♠ J 10	♥ A K J 6 2	♦ 7 6 4	♣ J 7 3
♠ (Blind)	♥ D 6	♦ A K 9 8 5 2	♣ None
♠ D 6	♥ A K 8 6	♦ A Q 10	♣ A Q 10

SILVER BRIDE

PHOEBE KOTEWALL WEDS
MR. W. A. HUNG

Miss Phoebe Jesper Kotewall, second daughter of the Hon. Mr. H. H. Kotewall and Mrs. Kotewall, was married yesterday to Mr. Walter Alexander Hung.

The wedding ceremony took place at the Registrar's Office, Supreme Court, at noon. Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith officiating. The bride's father and cousin were present at the ceremony.

The bridegroom, who is the Assistant Manager of the Sang Wo Co. Ltd., is the eldest son of Mr. Hung Tze-yee, Manager of the Sang Wo Co. and head of the Chinese Dept. of the Hongkong, Canton and Macao Steamboat Co. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Arts Faculty of Hongkong University, and for some time he played cricket for the University. His eldest sister is the wife of Mr. Robert Ho Tung, son of Sir Robert Ho Tung.

Later in the afternoon, a reception was held at the bride's home, "Hutton House," Kotewall Road.

Marina Gown.

The bride wore an exquisite wedding gown created by "Miranda" and made by the Salon de Mode. It was carried out in silver lace on the same lines as that worn by Princess Marina next week for her wedding at Westminster Abbey. With the gown, the bride wore a tiara of silver lace and orange blossom. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Doris Kotewall attended her sister as bridesmaid, and wore an ivory chiffon velvet gown created by "Armand and Marcel" made by the Salon de Mode. She also wore a tiara to match and carried a bouquet of gladioli.

Little Miss Patsy Kotewall and Master Cyril Kotewall, as flower-girl and page-boy, wore white satin also made by Salon de Mode.

Sir Thomas Southern, K.C., C.M.G., in proposing the health of the happy couple, said:

"I feel highly honoured to have been asked to propose the health of the bride and bridegroom on the occasion of the union of two such well known and distinguished families of Hongkong. For Walter and Phoebe are real children of Hongkong and a fine advertisement they are for Hongkong homes and Hongkong schools."

"The Bride's father and mother are two of our oldest friends in Hongkong and we have watched Phoebe grow up from childhood into the charming young woman she is today. Richly named, she is the sunshine of her parents' home and Hutton House will for a time seem a dull place without her but I am quite sure her delightful younger sisters will see to it that her place is quickly filled."

"I think Walter Hung must have known the old Gaelic proverb: 'Choose a good man's daughter for a wife,' for certainly he has acted upon it and in so doing he has found a pearl of great price. The Bride's parents have long since solved the problem, propounded many years ago by a Hongkong writer, of 'How to be happy though married,' and I am sure the newly married couple, with such an example before them, will find the task equally easy."

"The bridegroom I have not had the pleasure of knowing so well but he had the honour of proposing to the bride and bridegroom at the wedding of his charming sister so I naturally feel a special interest in Walter Hung's marriage. My secret service has been at work on his past, although I might have had some interesting stories to tell had it been otherwise, I am glad to say my agents report that he is fully qualified to wear the white flower of a blameless life. Worthy son of a worthy father, he has graduated from the Hongkong University with credit in work and play alike, and has quickly settled down to the serious business of life, and the most successful piece of business he has done so far is the wise step he has taken to-day."

"Ladies and Gentlemen the happy pair are well matched. Forbearance will be required of them from time to time for difficulties are bound to arise and life will not always wear its present superlatively rosy aspect but they are well trained for the duties that lie before them and we who are happily married offer them congratulations on their entry to-day on the happiest period of their lives."

"Ladies and Gentlemen I give you the toast of the health, happiness and prosperity of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hung."

Guests at Reception

Among the many guests present at the wedding reception were:

Lady Peel, Capt. R. F. Walter, Mr. J. G. Pilcher, Major-Gen. and Mrs. O. C. Borrett, Capt. F. R. L. Hoare, Commodore and Mrs. F. Elliott, Payr, Cendr. F. N. Porter, Rt. Rev. Bishop R. Hall and Mrs. Hall, Rt. Rev. Bishop Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. A. MacGregor, the Hon. Sir Thomas and Lady Southern, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lindsell, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Smith and Miss Smith, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. E. Taylor and Miss Taylor, the Hon. Comdr. and Mrs. G. F. Hole, the Hon. Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Wellington, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. R. M. SUGGESTIONS ARE HELPFUL

Throughout the year—but probably more often during the approach of Christmas, gift suggestions are welcomed; and in this connection the service of newspaper advertising is beneficial to seller and buyer alike.

Thus the newspaper fills the part of a directory which enters the home daily.

There is nothing stale about it; it guides in the trend of Fashion and gives a faithful indication of progress in every industry.

Between now and Christmas, many thousands of people will scan the pages of the Telegraph, and many of them will be delighted at the gift suggestions it contains.

Comparison of British and American Studios

WHERE U.S. SCORES

With 25 years' experience of production on both sides of the Atlantic, Wilfred "Noy" makes some interesting comparisons between British and American studio conditions in an article in the Kinema magazine Weekly.

My first glimpse of Hollywood in 1923, he says, demonstrated unmistakably how far the Americans were ahead.

With over 20,000 theatres in their own country, and enormous foreign markets, they had been able to conceive the making of pictures upon a vastly wider scale, and to allow far greater expenditure on individual subjects. This fact had acted like a magnet to draw every conceivable type of man, were he prospective writer, director, cameraman, or technician, into the business and to grow up with it.

America thus developed an army of experts in all departments, to draw upon as occasion required.

I do not suggest that more expenditure was the secret of America's success. A quite modest film as regards settings and size of cast is often a "best seller." But where the money must be spent is in a first-class personnel, from the highest executives down to the humblest assistant.

BRITISH ADVANCE.

When I returned to England I found an even greater revolution had taken place here. I was amazed at the advance of British pictures. What struck me even more forcibly was that many British studios were technically just as well equipped as those I had been working in on the other side.

But while there are plenty of fine studios to choose from in making a picture the question of personnel is a more difficult matter. There are first-rate men, of course, in all branches, but they are not so easy to lay one's hand on as in Hollywood where technical experts are more or less centred in one locality and can be reached easily and speedily.

Once assembled I found our British technicians a splendid working team; America could teach them nothing in keenness or enthusiasm. I look to the day when we shall have sufficient men trained to our own highest standard to turn out an average of pictures every bit as well made as anything produced elsewhere.

Surveying current British pictures I am convinced that the great need of British studios is to add to their fine equipment and skilled technicians a body of writers and directors able to develop this wonderful medium in a fashion still undreamed of.

In stories, freshness of treatment and originality of ideas I believe the British Empire is even now ahead of all others.

But we must assist and encourage new writers for the screen. Not necessarily authors who have made their names in other fields and are possibly not adaptable to a new technique, but promising men who have not yet had their chance.

I should like to see also a little more vision in the choice of directors. Here I know there is a greater element of risk in employing fresh blood; but this is greatly reduced if an experienced associate producer is there, standing by to control and advise during the initial effort. Young enthusiasm united to solid experience is not a bad combination for successful progress.

HOLLYWOOD ROMANCE ENDS

Marjorie Crawford, film actress (no relation to Joan Crawford), has been granted a divorce at Los Angeles from her husband, "Danny" Dowling, the dancer.

The marriage of the couple four months ago was one of the most unexpected even in Hollywood, where unexpected things are a daily occurrence (says Reuter).

Originally Dowling, who was

IF YOUR SKIN IS DRY

A woman whose skin is abnormally dry needs our sympathy in cold weather. It is so difficult for her to avoid a weather-beaten appearance. When the wind is in the east she looks pinched and cold and old. Wrinkles make their appearance when she is quite young unless she takes great precautions, and the skin of her neck and hands tends to become shrivelled. Sometimes even her hair grows harsh and brittle too. The remedy is plenty of fat, taken internally and applied externally. She should eat a lot of butter and cream, if she can afford it, drink milk, eat eggs, and see that she has sweet puddings and fat bacon will do her a great deal of good too. Then she must be very liberal with cold cream. Not only must she smear cold cream over her face, neck, hands and arms every night, but she should rub cold cream on her hands in the daytime after they have been in water, and use cold cream instead of a vanishing cream on her face before she goes out. It is an easy matter to wipe off the surplus with a soft tissue or old clean rag, and take away the shininess of the skin by dusting it well with powder. She should never venture out in cold weather without this protection of cream and powder.

Sometimes cold cream is not enough, and almond oil or olive oil must be used to anoint the skin at night. Either of these oils when warmed is most valuable for massaging into the scalp with the tips of the fingers. It feeds the roots of the hair and takes away excessive dryness. Hard water is conducive to dryness of the skin, so if you want to keep your skin soft and unlined, and the water in your district is hard, you must soften it. Use bran when washing clothes or dishes, and let little bags of oatmeal or bran soften your bath water. Use rain water when you can.

dancing partner of Joan Crawford, was charged with kidnapping Marjorie Crawford.

She said he had forcibly abducted her under threat of death, and she had escaped marrying him only by feigning illness.

He said he had motored to Arizona with Marjorie Crawford to get married at her request.

Then, in the middle of the proceedings, it was announced on May

COLOUR FILM COMING

KORDA'S LATEST ADVENTURE

The probability that film production in colour is very much more imminent than many people suppose is borne out by the latest news from Hollywood and Elstree.

In America, where the success of the short Technicolor picture, "La Cucaracha," has been one of the more notable events of the fall season, the first of projected colour features has recently been strengthened by the addition of Korda's "Becky Sharp," with Miriam Hopkins in the title role.

At home, British International Pictures plan to use colour sequences in their film, "Radio Parade of 1936," and Alexander Korda, the head of London Films, announces that as soon as his new studios open in April he will start production on a full-length colour picture, probably "Lawrence of Arabia." It is quite on the cards that he will also use colour for his projected film of the life of Napoleon—a subject which seems to be ideally suited to the new medium.

PROCESS

The system adopted by London Film is a newly invented British process known as Hillman Colour-gravure, produced by the Gerard Industries, and Mr. Korda is so much impressed by its possibilities for commercial film-making on a large scale that he has himself joined the Board of Directors. Hillman Colour-gravure is, I understand, a three-colour process which is relatively cheap to use, and will cost the producer very little more than ordinary monochrome photography. The subject is shot on one strip of film, and depends for its effect on the use of a small gadget attached to the ordinary cinema projector. This gadget may be purchased outright by the exhibitor for something between five and ten pounds, or hired along with the film.

The greatest difference between Colour-gravure and other colour systems, so far as the studio is concerned, is probably the fact that it requires only a negligible increase over the amount of lighting used in ordinary black-and-white photography. Hitherto the actors in colour films have had to work under conditions representing at least a 300 per cent. increase in the normal studio lighting, with the result that colour tones have faded, make-up has run, and the overheads have assumed almost fantastic proportions.

As the two had married. Eventually the charges against Dowling were dismissed.

NEW GROUSE AGAINST CINEMAS

Cinemas have been blamed for many things, but here is a new one.

They are responsible—or partly responsible, at least—for the fact that the people of Great Britain are eating fewer herring, kippers, and blonkers!

That is the opinion of fishmongers, who blame the cinema, palaces de danse, modern flats and lined foods. In other words, they say the bloater or kipper for tea has gone out of fashion because the modern housewife has not the patience to cook when she and her family want to rush off to the cinema. It is easier to open a tin.

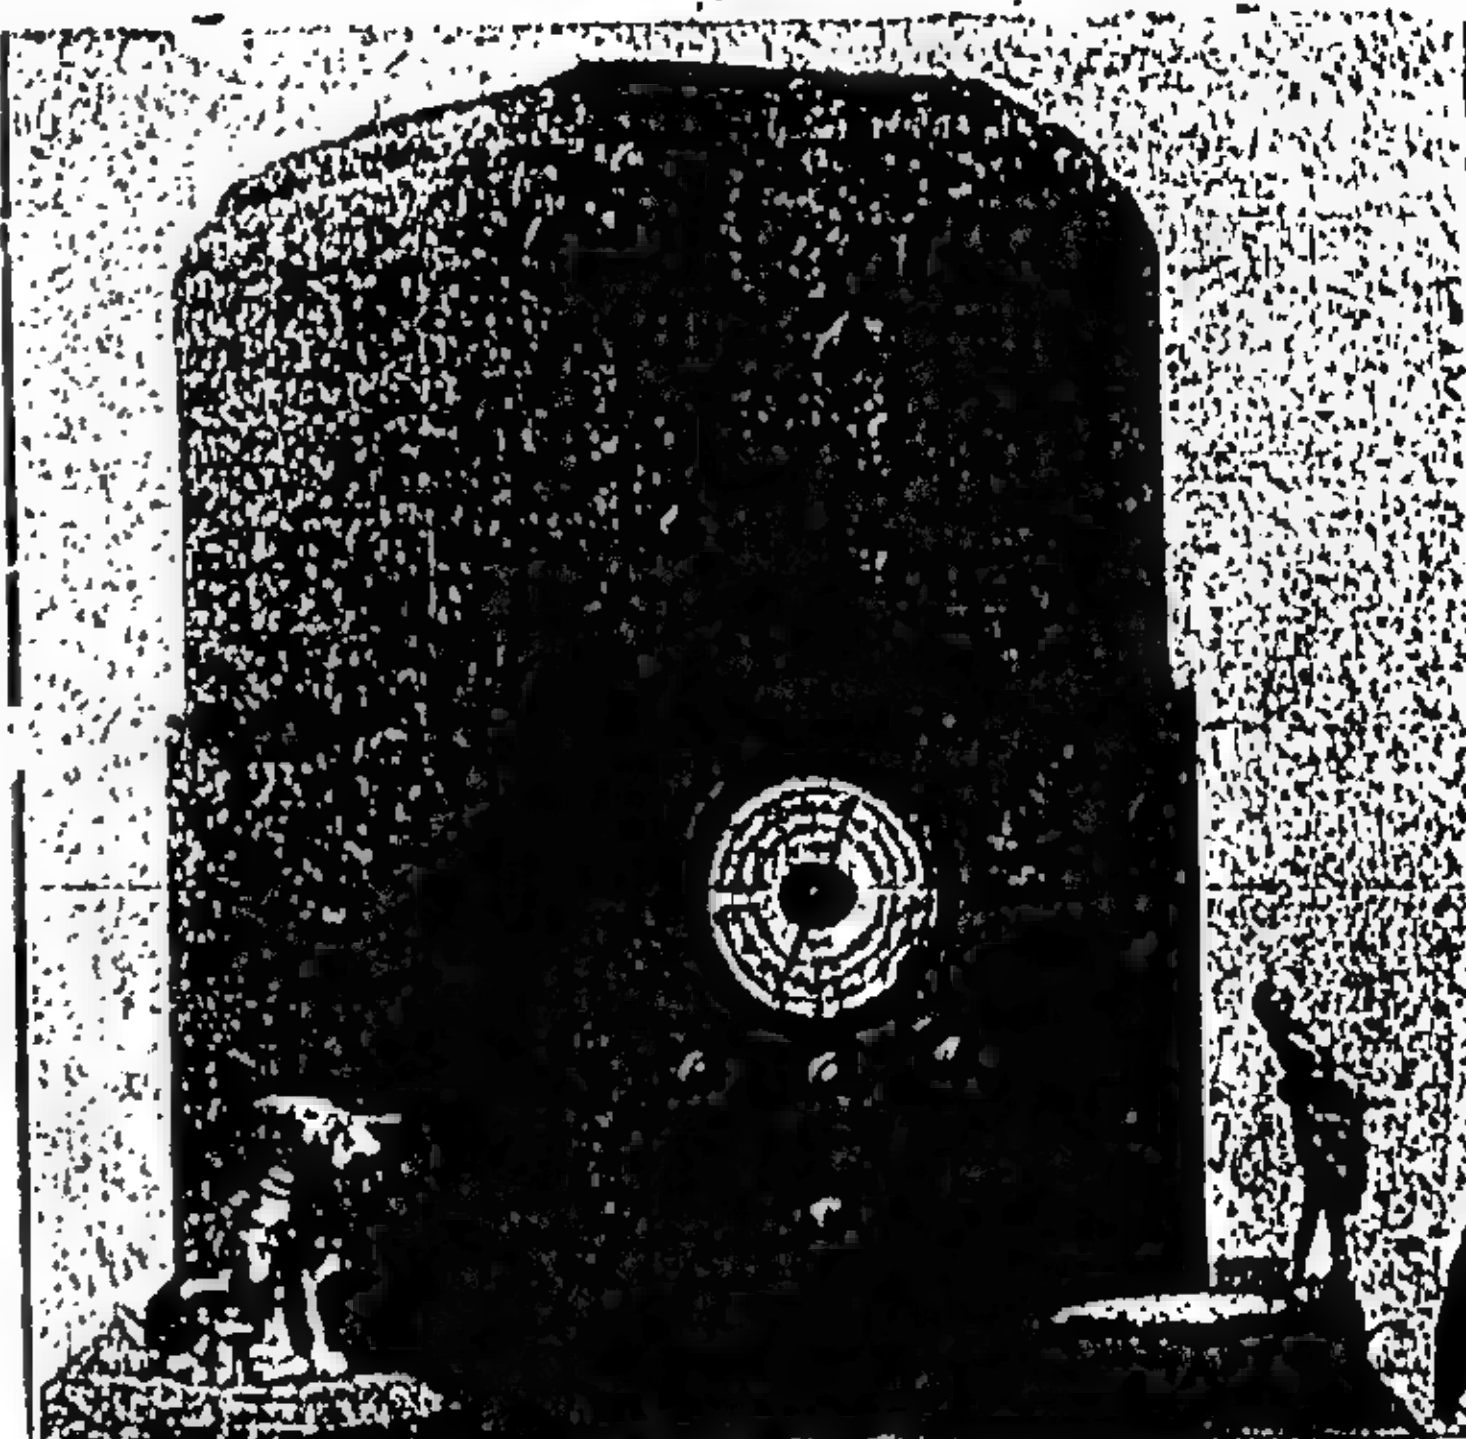

CLEMENCE DANE TO WRITE PLAY

Clemence Dane, the British novelist, has arrived in Hollywood.

She is under contract to write a screen play (says Reuter), and she expects it will be a screen version of Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina."

David Selznick will be the producer, and Greta Garbo the star.

END OF ENGLAND'S SLUMS IN SIGHT

GOVERNMENT SPEEDING PRODIGIOUS WORK

Although the country is right behind the Government and Sir Hilton Young, the Minister of Health, in their crusade to end slumdom, there have of late been instances, in the Press and on the platform, of uninformed and misleading criticism of the way adopted and the rate of progress which is being achieved.

The simple, irrefutable facts about what is being achieved, together with revealing figures, which Mr. Geoffrey Shakespeare, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry, was able to put forward on behalf of his chief, Sir Hilton Young (in the Minister's absence on a tour in the North of England), in a special interview with a representative of The Observer recently, will therefore be welcomed.

"One accusation," Mr. Shakespeare said, "is that because 12,000 houses have been built in eleven months our campaign has failed. As well say that because Poincaré and Brown have made only 40 runs in the first hour of a Test match, the most difficult period, the side cannot make 500 runs."

"We realised at the Ministry, when the National Government came in, that the slums were not being tackled. Between 1890 and 1932 only 20,000 slum houses had been demolished. Then, in 1933, we issued our great appeal to the local authorities to tackle their slum problems within five years. From the start the Minister realised that the problem could not be tackled effectively without a survey, and we appealed to the local authorities to survey their individual slum problems. There had been no drive behind Mr. Greenwood's survey in 1930, and it did not help us. For instance, whereas 76,000 houses were estimated in 1930 by 145 authorities to be slum houses in response to Mr. Greenwood's appeal, the same authorities gave to us a figure of 172,200."

RECONNAISSANCE

"We adopted the old military principle that time spent on reconnaissance is never wasted. The survey we made fully justified our expectations. The White Paper was issued in March, 1934, and the campaign really started last spring."

"The clearing of the slums must of necessity be a somewhat slow process, particularly in the first year. With your programme in front of you and working as quickly as possible, it takes about a year for a local authority to deal with a particular area. Legal and administrative action under the machinery of the 1930 Act, even though it be speeded up, takes about a year, and nobody but a fool expected many houses to be built in the first year of our five-year plan. Actually more houses have been built in the first year than we anticipated."

"Our five-year programme is to demolish 281,417 houses, of which 7,000 will be dealt with as individual houses, and the balance as houses in slum clearances."

"The clearing of the slums must of necessity be a somewhat slow process, particularly in the first year. With your programme in front of you and working as quickly as possible, it takes about a year for a local authority to deal with a particular area. Legal and administrative action under the machinery of the 1930 Act, even though it be speeded up, takes about a year, and nobody but a fool expected many houses to be built in the first year of our five-year plan. Actually more houses have been built in the first year than we anticipated."

"There are four stages in the clearance of slums. There is the resolution passed by the council in respect of a clearance area, there is the order submitted to the council in respect of the area, there is confirmation of the order by themselves after due inquiry into the state of the property and to see that justice is done to the owners, and, fourthly, there is approval for housing, the granting of which means that nothing can stand in the way of the required houses being built."

"The Ministry estimate that the rate per month must be about 600 houses in respect of each of these four processes. During the last six months the average has been well maintained, and, latterly, exceeded. For example, 27,000 houses have been included in the second stage (orders submitted) in the last six months ended September 30, 22,000 replacement houses were approved, which gives a rate, with no more acceleration, of 44,000 new houses. These figures show that in the second year of the campaign not fewer than 100,000 houses will be built, with the rate of building accelerating as the year goes on, and the peak will not be reached until the third year, when an amount of houses built will have reached 70,000."

MAINTAINING AVERAGE

"Take another test. To maintain an average of 50,000 houses a year, on the assumption that a house takes between seven and nine months to build, at any one moment 450,000 houses must be under construction, to give 50,000 completed

EXPANSION OF INDUSTRY

ENORMOUS SOVIET MOTOR FACTORY

Moscow, Nov. 10.

The Soviet Government will have the largest factory in the world for the manufacture of motorcars in 1937, it is claimed here, if its present plans for the enlargement of the existing Stalin plant, formerly the Amo works, in Moscow, are realised.

The Stalin plant now covers 225 acres, but its area after the reconstruction already started will be 1,250 acres. Its output of 31,000 trucks and buses a year will be increased to 105,000 trucks, buses and passenger cars, and the personnel will expand from 25,000 to 10,000.—United Press.

Mr. A. Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, went to Peking to inspect conditions in North China recently. The picture shows Mr. Ariyoshi (second from the right), Mr. Naohisa Sato, Japanese Ambassador to France (second from left) just before leaving Shanghai.

This, the copy sent to the Colonial Office, is written in a scholarly hand and begins in due form, "Be it known to all persons that we, Jagajaga Jagajaga Jagajaga, being the principal chiefs, and also Bungaree Yanyan (...there are several others...), being the chiefs of a certain native tribe hereinafter mentioned, and in consideration of 20 pairs of blankets, 30 tomahawks, 100 knives, 50 pairs of awls, 200 handkerchiefs, 100 pounds of flour, 6 shirts, and

A copy of the Treaty by which John Batman bought from the Australian Aborigines 600,000 acres of what is now Victoria for a parcel of blankets and knives is at present on view in the Public Records Office. Though not the original, it is the chief document in an exhibition arranged in connection with the Melbourne centenary. It is accompanied by a map showing "the site for a town," very near the present site of Melbourne. Where the original is to be found is obscure, though it is, or was, in the British similar payments to be made in subsequent years, sell the tract hereinafter mentioned. The chiefs made their mark at the bottom of the paper. Three of them had the same name, but it is not quite clear whether they made the same mark. The copyist has rendered it in each case as three squiggles slightly varied and concluding with a cipher; four marks for each chief. Were they recognised marks, or did the copyist stylise the path of an aimlessly wandering pen?

John Batman's treaty was sent to the Colonial Office in 1836. The treaty was not recognised by the New South Wales Government, and the real beginnings of Melbourne did not come till 1837. But 1934 is still an appropriate centenary year for it is the anniversary of the forming of the Port Phillip Association which started in Tasmania and ended in the foundation of a capital city. Alongside John Batman's document we are shown a map of one of the first journeys into Victoria. The explorers were a certain W. H.

EXPLORING AFRICA

An expedition has left Budapest under the leadership of Dr. Laszlo Benda, with the object of exploring unknown ground in north-east Africa. From Tripoli the expedition will travel to the mountain Tibesti, and then to Lake Tsad, where it is hoped that the problem of this lakes connection with the Bahr el Jebel may be solved.

Hovell and Hamilton Hume, who set off in 1824 from Lake George, New South Wales. Their map is like a wedge thrust into unknown country. They began by crossing mountains and then met a river which, says the map, is a hundred yards wide. So they crossed over and called it after Hume. They found at first rich alluvial plains and promising land. Then mountains cross their path. They are a long way from Lake George now and tired. They call it Disappointment Range. Mountains in front, impenetrable jungle on the flank, but they get through somehow and reach "Port Phillip called by the native Jillong." They ended their journey at the sea and, had they but known it, by the site of what was to be the capital of the new continent.

Flood, tornado, and earthquakes combined in an assault on Los Angeles and suburbs to leave death and wreckage behind. This picture shows the torrent raging through a city street, with water up to automobile hubcaps. Six died, and others are still missing; a ship was sunk; houses unroofed; and heavy loss caused by the flood waters in business buildings.

DRINKS SOLD OUT OF HOURS

Sequel To Police Visit

An fine of $100 was imposed on Lothar Hammann, licensee of Jimmy's Kitchen, Nos. 42-46 Lockhart Road, by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning for selling liquor during prohibited hours on November 15.

Mr. T. Murphy, A.S.P., prosecuted, and Mr. A. el Arculli appeared on behalf of the defendant.

In admitting that drinks had been served, Mr. Arculli stated that defendant was not in the restaurant at the time, but he had always given strict instructions to his employees not to serve drinks after hours.

Although the summons stated that the offence was committed at 10.40 p.m., Mr. Arculli said he would say that the time would be nearer 10.10 p.m. because the restaurant clock had been put forward half an hour. A police officer entered the restaurant in company with a sailor. The latter asked for a drink sometime after 9 p.m., whether at the instigation of the officer or not.
Mr. Arculli could not say. He was served by the boy, who did so because he was afraid of trouble, which had occurred before.
The boy did refuse later on, and
Mr. Arculli submitted that the officer should have stopped the sale when the sailor insisted.

Mr. Arculli said defendant had never before committed a breach of the Ordinance, and in view of this, he would ask his Worship to administer a caution.

WHAT HAPPENED.

Mr. Murphy remarked that the outline given by Mr. Arculli did not entirely agree with the evidence that could be brought before the Court. The time of the offence was not as early as
Mr. Arculli made out. The officer and the sailor went to the restaurant at Mr. Murphy's instigation. They entered the dining hall and asked for food and were served. Before the meal had been consumed, the sailor asked for a drink. The waiter replied "Not here; you might be seen by the police."

After the meal, the sailor again asked for a drink. They were told to go inside a room at the back, and there they were served with drinks. They had two bottles of beer each. There were four American sailors and another
British sailor in the same room drinking beer.

ON PROBATION.

The police action was taken as the result of information received that drinks were sold on the premises to Servicemen out of hours.
It was a serious offence to accommodate Servicemen out of hours in a restaurant. Mr. Murphy also pointed out that defendant should at the time of the offence be on his best behaviour because at the last meeting of the Licensing Board on November 7, defendant's case was deferred for a time. This period was, so to speak, his probationary period, and if he was prepared during this time to sell drinks openly out of

HIS FIRST STEPS.

The child's first months and years
are usually the most difficult, especially if he is backward in development,
lacks appetite, has irregular elimination, fails to gain weight as he should.

Often the conscientious mother is worried almost ill by these problems.
Yet in many cases the solution is right at her hand if she but knew of it.

In Baby's Own Tablets innumerable mothers have found just what was wanted to start the backward little one right off on to the road of regular progress. The prescription of an eminent medical child-specialist,
these Tablets quickly correct infantile stomach and bowel troubles, thus bringing constipation, aiding digestion, removing the causes of colic,
vomiting, flatulence, diarrhoea.

They allay teething pains almost
as if by magic, reduce feverishness,
ease colds and croup, expel worms,
soothe the nerves, and bring calm,

TWO CARS IN COLLISION

Sanitary Inspector Kerrison was involved in a motor accident in the Tai Hang district this morning shortly before 10.30 o'clock.

He was driving his Austin Seven,
No. 1289, in a westerly direction along Tai Hang Road and when near the intersection of Tin Hau
Temple Road, a Willys Knight car,
No. 2016, crossed the thoroughfare.

The cars collided. The right mud-guard and front wheel of the Austin were buckled, while damage was done to the other car's left rear mudguard.

The larger car was conveying two Chinese women passengers and a child. The child's leg was injured, but not seriously.

The Austin Seven was brought to a standstill in the middle of the road.

In answer to his Worship, Mr.
Murphy went on, to think what would happen if his case was not deferred.

WHY DEFERRED.

Mr. Arculli interposed and remarked that since Mr. Murphy had brought up the question of defendant's case being deferred by the Licensing Board, it was only fair to add that the selling of drinks had nothing to do with it.
The case was deferred because of an allegation against one of defendant's employees regarding smuggling.

In answer to his Worship, Mr.
Murphy said defendant had a clean record since taking over the licence on August 11 last.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 21, 1934.

PIGS' AND POULTRY

A concise but essentially constructive report has been issued by the Committee appointed to advise on practical steps for improving and extending the breeding of pigs and poultry in the New Territories. Two most desirable purposes will be served if the recommendations made are followed by appropriate action. In the first place, two industries of real value will be developed, to the manifest advantage both of those engaging in them and the consuming public; and, secondly, this Colony will be placed on a more self-supporting basis in the supply of the necessities of life. The extent to which we are dependent on outside sources is shown by the fact that some 350,000 pigs, valued at ten million dollars, are imported every year, whilst three million dollars' worth of live poultry and about two million dollars' worth of eggs are brought in every year. The production for purposes of local consumption is only an infinitesimal percentage of these figures. It is obvious, therefore, that there is ample scope for the development of both industries. At the present time, the breeding both of pigs and poultry in the New Territories is carried out on most haphazard lines, with little, if any, organised method. Apart from the innate conservatism of the breeders, poverty is the main factor in hindering development. In the case of pig-breeding, long before the animals are ready for slaughter they pass through numerous hands, each raking off a little profit, simply because the original breeders have not the wherewithal to keep them for fattening and are consequently forced to sell in order to raise a little ready money. There is thus great need, if what should be a paying industry is to be properly developed, of some scheme of credit facilities being devised in their interests. Similar considerations apply in the case of poultry, and, in both industries there is need for more scientific methods both in breeding and in the battle against disease. The Committee recommends a modest beginning in plans for improving the position, starting with the appointment of an expert in husbandry and later leading to the creation of a small Farm Board which would co-ordinate the agricultural activities of the Colony. Such a step,

NOTES OF THE DAY

THRIVING BUSINESS

Everyone knows that thousands of dollars, bags and boxes full of Chinese silver, are being smuggled out of China daily. According to a most reliable source this Chinese silver money is pouring into Hongkong in a steady stream, at the rate of approximately $1,000,000 a day. The theory is that it is re-exported, either to England or America. The reason for this flight of Chinese silver is obvious. The value of the metal in the dollar is greater than the value of the dollar itself, due to the fact that China has succeeded in preventing an advance in the value of her currency in proportion to the price rise of the metal. China placed an embargo on silver exports. Hence the activity of certain "merchants" who smuggle coins out of Chinese seaports. As long as this price discrepancy remains, so long will the drain on China's silver resources continue. And unless something is done to check the smuggling situation will become increasingly embarrassing. It may even be dangerous. The supply of Chinese silver is not inexhaustible.

GERMANY'S ROAD

There is a suggestion, according to cabled reports, that all is not well with the Nazi regime in Germany. There are mutterings among the Storm Troopers. Apparently they are placed upon them by Herr Goebbels, the Minister of Propaganda, and against General Goering, the Premier of Prussia, who is alleged to have been responsible for much of the "blood-letting" in the party last June. At the same time, there are alarmist reports published in Paris that the German army of 1935 will muster five and a half million men within a few days of mobilisation, that the armaments factories are speeding up their output and that a powerful air force can be put into action at a moment's notice. Then, too, there is the problem of the Saar, a potential menace to the peace of Europe, to bother the Hitler administration. It is a hard road the Third Reich travels, and the responsibility of his office must weigh heavily upon Herr Hitler. There are many who doubt the man's ability. But if he succeeds in overcoming the trouble within and if he avoids a clash beyond the German frontier during his tenure of office, he will be worthy of acclaim. Even though he fails to do these things it will be no proof that Hitler's genius is not genuine. The world should judge a man by what he tries to do, and the world is watching Hitler.

HITLER'S MISTAKE

It begins to look as if Herr Hitler made one of the major mistakes of his career in seeking to extend his influence to the pulpits of German churches, however. A man's political beliefs can be changed or silenced; his feelings on economic and social problems can be overridden or disregarded; but when you begin trying to coerce him in the field of religion, you are apt to stir up a great deal more trouble than you can handle. The German people accepted most of Herr Hitler's innovations docilely enough, but his interference in church matters has brought him nothing but criticism and defiance. What sort of omen all this may be for the future of Nazi rule is a question no man can answer just now. It is a safe guess, however, that the dictator would be very glad to find some way of dropping this issue—since it turned out to be so much "hotter" than he had expected.

coupled with the suggested improved means of communication by linking up outlying villages with the main roads, should greatly assist the attainment of the ends in view. Something has already been done in recent years, thanks to the advent of motor transport and schemes sponsored by the New Territories Agricultural Association, to improve marketing facilities, but much more is still possible in this direction. Bearing in mind the extent of the demand locally for pigs, poultry and eggs, it is self-evident that there is a huge market at the very doors of the New Territories breeder, if only he can be induced to adopt modern methods and is assured of some measure of financial assistance. The first necessity is to secure the services of an expert advisor on the subject, and, once he is engaged, the whole question can be explored in all its aspects and appropriate steps taken to meet local needs. The Government's sympathy with the project seems assured, and it is therefore to be expected that the Committee's proposals will be put into effect without undue delay.

GIANT AIRCRAFT TO SPAN PACIFIC

By A. EDDY

It was announced on Monday in the Hongkong Telegraph that the Pan-American Airways would shortly send a giant Sikorsky flying boat across the Pacific as an experiment in connection with the proposed trans-Pacific air mail passenger service. It is believed that the big machine will take off from Los Angeles, for Hongkong early in the New Year.

The Brazilian Clipper, which is scheduled to visit Hongkong in the beginning of next year, a few weeks ago completed one of the most significant commercial flights in the history of aviation, flying from Miami, Florida, to Buenos Aires in five days, clipping two days from the fastest travel time between Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and the United States.

The inaugural flight of the Brazilian Clipper to Buenos Aires was in the nature of a trade mission in order to improve inter-American relations for the mutual commercial advancement of the United States and Latin America, and its nineteen passengers included Mr. Eugene Vidal, Director of Air Commerce of the United States, representing the U.S. Government, Mr. Roy Howard, Chairman of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, and executives of the United Press, Associated Press, Hearst papers, Chicago American, Baltimore Sun, North American Newspaper Alliance, and Mr. J. T. Tripp, President and General Manager of the Pan-American Airways, and others.

The City of Rio de Janeiro and the people of Brazil exhibited unusual interest in the great Clipper, and the Presidents of both Brazil and Uruguay attended the colourful ceremonies the following day when Senhora Vargas, wife of the President of Brazil, formally baptized the aerial giant and dedicated the great ship to the service of humanity and welfare of the Americas. Describing the significance of the maiden flight of the Brazilian Clipper and likening its present flight, and its trade significance, to the early trips of the glorious old time sailing "clippers," Mr. Tripp expressed his deep appreciation for the support the Brazilian Government has given to the development of international air service and renewed the Pan-American pledge of unceasing effort toward the furtherance of friendly ties and commercial relations between the American nations.

A demonstration unparalleled in enthusiasm greeted the Clipper in B.A. as Buenos Aires is familiarly called. An official holiday was declared and all business suspended in order to enable the gay South American city to welcome the flying boat. The party was immediately swept into a programme of official entertainment which included a reception by the President of Argentina, Sr. Justo, at Government House, and a banquet at which Captain Marcos Zar, Director of Naval Aviation of Argentina was host, at the American Club.

After two days spent in Argentina, the Brazilian Clipper started on its return flight to the North American continent after a visit which, the Argentine press had stated, far surpassed in positive results all the "good-will" missions of recent years between the United States and Argentina. The Brazilian Clipper reached Miami on the fifth day after leaving Buenos Aires and covering the distance of 1,900 miles between the South American and North American continents in 12 hours, thus enabling the passengers who were in Port of Spain, (Trinidad, British territory) on Thursday, to breakfast in New York on Friday.

Despite the restricted transport conditions under which the flight was made, the Brazilian Clipper accomplished the approximate 7,500 miles southward run in 55 hours, and the northward run in 47 hours flying time, the entire journey of approximately 15,000 miles occupying 15 days with two days stop in Rio and B.A. For the entire flight an average speed of 155 miles was maintained against wind conditions which were for the most part unfavourable.

Before the Brazilian Clipper had undertaken the South America flight it shattered all existing world records for transport seaplanes which were previously held in Europe, when she carried some time in August last, a full transport load and flew 1,242 miles non-stop at an average speed of 157.5 miles per hour, on its final acceptance test at the Sikorsky factory in Bridgeport, Connecticut.

The above account is the gist of a report describing the B.A. flight of the Brazilian Clipper, in the last issue of the Pan-American Airways Magazine.

Since its inception in 1928 up to July 31, 1934, the planes of the Pan-American Airways carried 307,995 passengers and almost 17 million pounds of mail and cargo, and there is no doubt that Hongkong, figuring in the Trans-Pacific Airway System as the Gateway to China, a country occupying one twelfth of the surface of the globe and harbouring within its confines more than one fifth of the entire human race, is destined to derive incalculable benefits as one of the most important airports of the world.

"You know all their expensive furniture. I understand that is all that's keeping them together."

The Very Idea!

BLUE WOMEN
By George

NOW is the time for all of us to contribute something new and useful for the New Year and, so that nobody can say we didn't think of it first, we are going to advocate police women for Hongkong.

Say what you like about it, the idea is a good one. The first time we met one of these blue coated Circos in Piccadilly we fell for her.

There's something peculiarly solid and domestic about 13 stones of female in golasches flicking gracefully at the precocious pedestrian with her truncheon as she surges along.

We already have our Eva—what about our Evas?
We ourselves can imagine nothing nicer than being arrested at midnight by one of these graceful girls and sinking dreamily into her safe custody.

Of course she might take us to the station—what a colli! But we are convinced that many a romantic heart beats beneath the cheap serge affected by these bobby-haired, red-lipped vamps and that a large golosh would forgo the straight and narrow for love's rosy path.

As Lord Trenchard said to the female recruit: Life is not a bed of roses. Get your man—even if you have to arrest him.

We spoke to one policewoman before coming out East. She was holding up a quarter of a mile of traffic on Tottenham Court Road while she powdered her nose. A few buses crept by every time she changed hands but we calculated on ten minutes or so before our bus would be able to get by.

"Can you tell us the way to the British Museum?" we asked in Cantonese Cockney.

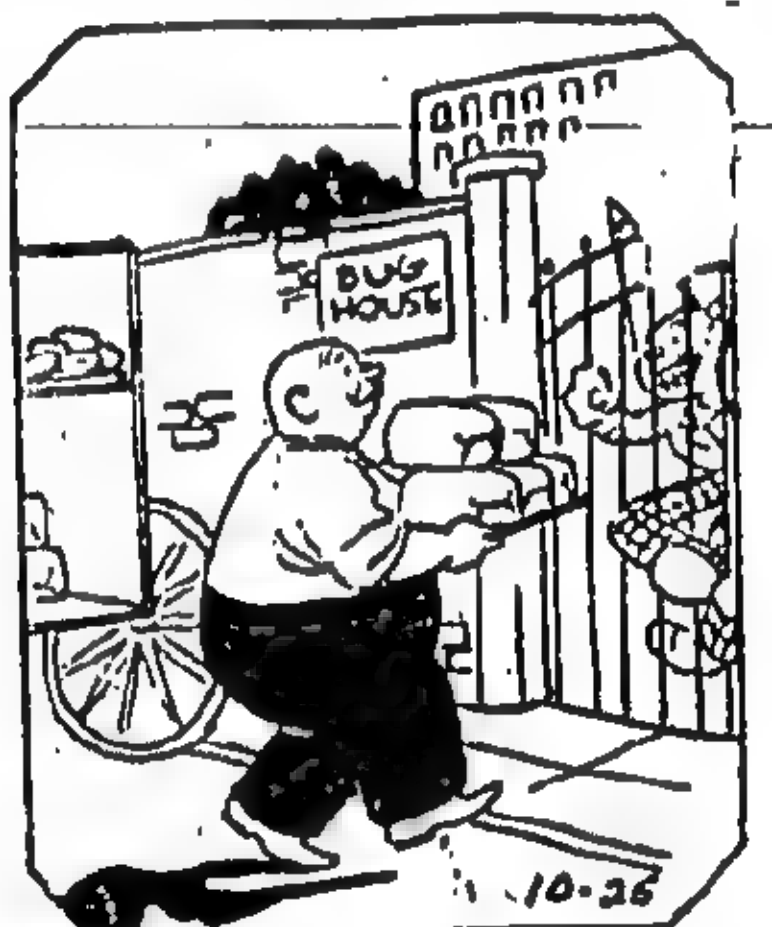

"Never heard of it," she replied blandly and changed hands. A couple of cars crept by before she realised her error.

"Don't you get tired of holding up traffic all day?" we asked ingratiatingly.

"I'd get more tired of holding a baby," she replied with a gesture of dismissal which afforded escape to a jolly and brought our bus five minutes nearer.

There was nothing else for it so we tickled her under the arms till our bus got alongside and jumped in.

VARIED DEBATE

INDIAN POLICY IN REVIEW

PREMIER'S SPEECH

London, Nov. 20. There was a large attendance when the House of Commons re-assembled this afternoon, and members soon settled down to the work of the new and important session.

The address to the Throne was moved and seconded, as is usual, by private member, on this occasion Mr. N. K. Lindsay and Colonel Kerr, and both the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. George Lansbury, and the Prime Minister were early speakers in the debate which followed.

Mr. Lansbury, in connection with the Government's proposals outlined in the Speech from the Throne, emphasised that despite the great increase of people in work, unemployment was still widespread. He argued that employers and employed should together try to evolve means of reducing hours and employing extra work people without reducing wages or profits.

WORKING FOR PEACE.

The Prime Minister, reviewing the foreign situation, said there was no doubt that events had happened in Europe during the last 18 months which had not increased confidence, but had been the cause of great concern between nations. The Government had made known their determination to carry on the co-operative work at Geneva through the League, and would continue to further the cause of peace.

Referring to the Disarmament Conference, Mr. MacDonald said its position, although certainly not despairing, was not too hopeful. They were still determined to get something substantial and international out of its deliberations.

Turning to India, the Prime Minister said the Government would have to give the House full opportunities for discussion, but, in saying that, he did not mean licence. They hoped every question in the report would come before the House and be discussed, but he did not believe the House would allow them to give a rolling and roving commission day after day and week after week.

COMING TO MATURITY

"The Indian situation," he said, "is one that has been steadily maturing on account of the education and political example we have given to India. Whatever one's views may be, it is sheer folly and blindness to believe that our relations with India, our policy pursued towards India through generations, and the pledges we have given to India, would never come to maturity. They have come to maturity now. This moment is not created by any party, either in India or here. It has been created by the policy of this country and its relations to its Indian Empire."

He hoped they would be given an opportunity of building a structure which would take its place among those great monuments of political wisdom which mark the evolution of the Imperial constitutional fabric. He was convinced that this would be the result of the deliberations of the House.

NOT AGGRESSIVE

Referring to defence questions, the Premier said the London naval agreement gave them power to call the escalator clause into operation. This they had not done, despite many opportunities presented, because they wanted to demonstrate clearly and definitely to every Power in the world their desire that other countries should follow in the steps that Britain had taken. They had proved to the world that their armament was not offensive or aggressive, and if it was to be strengthened, as it would have to be, on account of the nation's needs, he believed no-one would accuse them of having taken such a course to increase their offensive power. On the question of trade, the Premier said the Government would continue their present policy, which had resulted in such good effect on Britain's trade position. They were subsidising shipping because they were being competed with by subsidies given by other countries. All they were proposing to do was to establish some measure of equality.

"Here and now, in this way, the Government has let it be known to these countries," said Mr. MacDonald, "that as soon as they are willing to come to arrangements that will be fair, we are prepared to come to that arrangement."

FOG SPOILS PAGEANT

KING RIDES IN CLOSED CAR

PARLIAMENT'S REOPENING

London, Nov. 20. Although fog today ruined London of its pageant, and the King and Queen drove to Westminster for the State opening of Parliament in a closed car instead of in the great gilded coach with postillions and outriders, large crowds nevertheless lined the route and loudly cheered their Majesties, who, in order to mitigate the people's disappointment, had given special orders that the car should proceed slowly.

In the House of Lords, where the King delivered his Speech from the Throne, the ceremonial had all its customary mellow dignity.

The Duke of Kent, by virtue of his recently-conferred Peerage, was present for the first time and sat near his brothers, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York.

The King's Speech took only a few minutes, after which their Majesties, followed by their sons, left the Chamber. They were again loudly cheered as they drove back to Buckingham Palace.

FREE COINAGE OF SILVER

Senator Wheeler Continues Fight

Washington, Nov. 20.

The split between the so-called "silver bloc" members in the Senate was re-emphasised to-day when Senator Wheeler stated that he would re-introduce his bill to authorise the free coinage of silver at a ratio of not more than 16 to one with gold.

He would continue to fight for this measure, he said, with the support of a strong Senate following.

CULTURAL TREASURE

CHINA'S GIFT TO CIVILISATION

Shanghai, Nov. 21.

China's greatest contribution to cultural advancement during the past twenty years has been the opening of museums for scholars and all those genuinely interested in the relics there, declared Dr. J. C. Ferguson, well-known authority on Chinese affairs, when addressing an audience here.

He said that in 1914 when the Government first brought certain cultural objects from the Jehol palace and placed them in the Peking palaces there was opened an era that brought Chinese and western civilisations closer together.

Dr. Ferguson urged the opening of more museums. He said that great treasures brought to Shanghai from Peking were concealed in a godown—a waste of cultural advancement.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

WE CAN NEVER BE GRIEVED FOR THEIR MISERIES WHO ARE THOROUGHLY WICKED, AND HAVE THEREBY JUSTLY CALLED THEIR CALAMITIES ON THEMSELVES.—Dryden.

Lee, Ho, summoned by Revenue Officer A. Grimitt at the Central Magistracy for keeping a heroin divan in Wing Sing Street, was given the option of a $500 fine or six months' imprisonment.

From Messrs. Gilman and Co. we have received a copy of the October number of Modern Motoring, which contains much of general interest as well as articles on motoring subjects. A special feature is made of the number and Hillman programmes for 1935.

Cheung Wah-kit, aged 24 years, was fatally injured when he alighted from a moving tram in Queen's Road East near the Naval Dockyard yesterday afternoon. The man was removed to the Government Civil Hospital in an unconscious condition and died last night.

U Yak-kwai, manager of the Kau Yue Fong Theatre, was fined $100 by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning for storing 100 reels of cinema films in a place other than a store-room approved by the authorities. Mr. J. C. Fitzgibbon, Deputy Superintendent of the Fire Brigade, prosecuted.

At the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home to-night, at 8.30 p.m., Professor G. A. G. Herklotz is to give a lecture on "Glimpses of Nature in Hongkong."

For failing to make an import declaration within seven days, Kwong Tung-hing, of 24 Gilman Bazaar, was fined $25 by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning on a summons in respect of 52 baskets of groundnut oil imported from Tsing-tao on the steamer Sinking on September 29.

On a charge of stealing a letter from a private post box at 55B, Hennessy Road on November 15, Chan Pak was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour at Central Magistracy this morning. For receiving the letter he was fined $50 or an additional one month and for being in unlawful possession of a letter in Lockhart Road another six weeks, the sentences being consecutive.

Mr. T. P. K. Kemble, of Messrs. Wilkinson & Grist, represented the police this morning when, at the Central Magistracy, Ho Lum Sang, Pua Fong and Kwan Yu, alias Kwan Ng, appeared on remand. Mr. Kemble asked that a further charge of assaulting Ma Tau-nam with intent to rob in High Street on November 16 be preferred and that the men be remanded to Monday. Other charges might be brought later. Mr. Schofield the Magistrate, gave his assent.

APPEARANCE

Balanced Value is to an automobile what poise is to a man—a sound, sane, practical balance between the qualities that make it a thrilling car to drive, comfortable to ride in, safe and sure on the road, distinctively modern in appearance and with operating costs so low that owners are agreeably surprised.

But gasoline and oil economy is not the only saving that CHEVROLET—the ECONOMY SIX—gives you.

KNEE ACTION WHEELS, BLUE STREAK ENGINE, Y-K FRAME, NO DRAFT VENTILATION, OCTANE SELECTOR, SYNCRO-MESH GEARS, are exclusive features of the CHEVROLET.

Corinthians' Revival

THIS YEAR'S CUP ENTRY

"There is an ambition, strong and definite, among the members of the Corinthian Football Club to-day to establish the club as a permanent home—our own home, if possible—and at a revival of the high standard of play reached by great Corinthians of the past."

This was the reply of Mr. J. G. Stevenson, honorary secretary of the Corinthian Football Club, when asked why the club had decided to enter for the Football Association Cup competition again this season.

They first entered in 1922-23, but dropped out last season when they were not excused the first two rounds.

"I admit," said Mr. Stevenson, "that almost our sole assets at the moment are the example of the past and the spirit of the present. The younger Corinthians are really tremendously keen. They want the club back on its old footing."

SOURCES OF TALENT

"We regard the annual entry for the Cup as a rallying ground. There is no doubt that in the years when we were in the competition, the interest of all Corinthians and their friends and supporters was then focussed sharply on the club, and the keenness of our young players this year was so urgent that any doubts that may have lingered because of past failures were swept away."

"Since the club was formed in 1882 we have had some great eras, the last of which produced the Ashlons, Freddie Ewer, A. C. Bower, Creek and Daggart, and K. E. Hegon."

"We may have to wait some time for another cycle, but I do not think it will be long in coming."

"I see some improvement at Oxford and Cambridge, which are our chief sources of talent. They are working very hard at both Varsity towards a higher standard."

RULES THE SAME

"What has encouraged me to be optimistic, however, is the rapid strides being made at the public schools, which are really our nurseries. I have myself played this year against Charterhouse, Bradford, Shrewsbury, and other schools, and they are definitely better—I think Charterhouse has the finest team of its history."

"The boys' classes, held at Highbury and carried on afterwards, did wonderful work. I would like to see that idea revived and expanded."

Mr. Stevenson was asked whether the character of the club was to change as regards membership. Here is his reply:

"The rules regarding membership have not been altered. We are primarily a club for old Oxford and Cambridge men, and the club must preserve its identity in this respect."

"But it has never been exclusively for the university men, and I say emphatically that we have never been snobbish in the slightest degree. Nor are we now being forced to open our membership to any man whom we would not have admitted before."

LOOKING AHEAD

"Our membership rule amounts to this: a prospective member must be a good player and a good fellow. In the past we have had such non-Varsity men as Arthur Knight, Howard Baker, and many others, including myself. At the present time two Queens Park (Glasgow) men are members. So are Bernard Joy and J. C. Burns, two magni-

NEW STARTING GATE

Innovation On British Racecourses

The Northolt Executive has been experimenting with a type of starting gate which is new to English race-courses.

Termed the "Benjamin Barrier," this starting gate has been in operation for nine years on the Millerton Racecourse, near Cape Town, and it is claimed to have reached perfection.

The barrier is of six strands, and it is operated by the pressure of the starter's foot on a concealed lever, thus doing away with anticipation of the starter's intentions.

When the lever is depressed, the barrier swings outwards and upwards, completing a semi-circle at such a speed that it is impossible for the horses to become entangled.

Should a fractious horse dash into the strands, they become disconnected.

Constructed of steel and phosphor-bronze, the gate has no unsightly posts or overhead wires, the machine at each side of the course being connected by an underground control cable.

It is stated that in the nine years of its service in South Africa there has been no accident in connection with the use of this machine.

STRANGE MISHAP

Crystal Palace Manager Breaks Leg

Mr. J. Trösdern, the Crystal Palace manager, who appeared in the first Cup Final at Wembley when with West Ham United, and also gained an English international cap, broke his leg during a practice match in which he usually takes part.

He had just kicked the ball when he heard a bone snap in his left shin. He was removed to Crofton General Hospital, where a fracture was diagnosed, but after the injured limb had been set he was allowed to go home by ambulance.

This is the third time Mr. Trösdern has broken a bone in his leg. The first occurred when he was a child and the second in 1926 when player-manager of Northampton.

CHINA PONIES CLASSIFICATION

In a communication from the Hongkong Jockey Club the following re-classifications of China ponies are noted:

Don to "C" Class.
Zero to "D" Class.

Recent sportsmen and two good footballers.

Joy will assist the Corinthians this season. He is an amateur international, and with A. H. Chadder will form the backbone of a fine half-back line. Burns plays regularly for Brentford and will not be available for the Cup.

But Mr. Stevenson believes that this year's side will be better than most people think. It is to the future—any three or four years' time—however, that those who now seek to bring back the Corinthians to their former might are working.

The Crystal Palace ground will be used by the club only for matches against the Varsity and for home games in the Cup. All other matches are played on other grounds.

ALMOST THE END THREE YEARS AGO

REMARKABLE PAGE IN HISTORY OF MODERN FOOTBALL

By Frank M. Carruthers

Football teams with stories which must for ever remain unwritten—the tragedies enacted behind closed doors and the broken lives of officials and players.

But there is one concerning Preston North End which may now be told for the first time, and there is no page in the history of the game comparable with it.

It begins with overwhelming disaster and it continues with the refusal of courageous men to go out and go under, their ceaseless struggle against forbidding odds, and their triumphant progress. One would regard it as fiction if the facts were not so poignantly true.

Three years ago Preston North End, a club with imperishable memories, crashed.

As the directors faced the situation there seemed no way out. "Proud Preston," "The Invincibles," the club who had won the League championship without losing a match, and in the same season captured the Cup without conceding a single goal, had fallen into a state beyond repair.

No hopes did the position seem that it was actually proposed and seconded that the gates of Deepdale should be thrown open to amateurs or anyone who might like to play there.

That was only three years ago, and to-day Preston North End can once more look the world in the face as a First Division club. One man has been mainly responsible for this magnificent recovery. Mr. James Taylor, a director for twenty years and steeped in all the traditions of the famous club, refused to accept the position, ugly as it was. He was not prepared to surrender without a last fight.

AN OFFER

I understand that when the directors met on that fateful day three years ago Mr. Taylor said in effect, "Give me control for three years and I will save the club." There have been ready helpers in the meantime, but Mr. Taylor, closely associated with Mr. Nathan Buck, has really brought about the wonderful recovery. No one disputes this.

When Mr. Taylor took over the control the club were heavily in debt, and the revenue at the turnstiles was still dwindling. They were terribly short, too, of competent players, and it was obvious that they could not begin a revival until fresh men were obtained.

Where were they to come from? Mr. Taylor visited London on a great adventure. He went to see Mr. Morton Cadman, the vice-chairman of Tottenham Hotspur. "Will you let us have your two forwards Harper and Rowley?" he asked, putting all his cards on the table. "We have no money, but we will pay you out of revenue week by week."

There is supposed to be no sentiment in these transfer deals, but although the two players had cost the Tottenham club a substantial sum they agreed to risk losing their money in order to help Preston.

No club ever did a finer thing, because they undoubtedly started the revival of the old North End, and they may be very proud of the part which they so magnanimously played in helping to bring it about.

I can imagine the mixed feelings of Mr. Taylor as he left Tottenham after having carried out the negotiations. But there was no time for reflection before the next difficulty had to be overcome.

The team had to visit Plymouth and—who was going to pay the fares? I only mention this to indicate the financial state of the club.

But it was a case of fortune following the brave. The introduction of Harper and Rowley into the North End team brought re-

LOCAL SOCCER

Several Postponements For Saturday Next

Several postponements are notified for next Saturday's local football programme, the most notable being the match between the Club and the Navy in the First Division. The match between the Club de Recreo and the Kowloon Football Club has also been re-arranged.

In the place of these two postponements it has been arranged that the Royal Navy and the Club de Recreo play off their match originally fixed for March 3. This game will be played on the Kowloon Football Club ground commencing at 4.15 p.m.

In the Second Division the following matches arranged for Saturday next

BASKETBALL

Wah Yan College Win Senior Shield

After a keen and exciting match, Wah Yan College on Tuesday afternoon beat Wah Kiu College in the final for the Senior Basketball Shield. Both teams had been previously unbeaten, so that the excitement was intense. Every possible point of vantage round Blake Gardens, where the match was played, was occupied.

The final whistle went with Wah Yan leading by 11 points, the full-time score being 27-16.

Interport Shoot

Colony Bad Last In Triangular Match

Hongkong finished a bad last in the Triangular Interport Rifle Shoot which has been won by Shanghai, who compiled a grand total of 965 points against Singapore's aggregate of 954.

Shanghai fired last week, when their ten counting men averaged 96.5.

Twelve men shoot, but only the ten best scores count. The only rifle allowed to be used is the short magazine Lee-Enfield .303. The ranges are 200, 500 and 600 yards, one eighth and seven scoring shots at each range.

Hongkong fired on November 4 last, and registered a total of 888 points.

Shanghai's detailed scores were as follows:

	200	500	600	Total
1. A. Mottu	51	54	54	99
2. H. Berghol	52	54	54	99

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

Y.M.C.A. SENIORS BEAT ST. ANDREW'S

N. A. E. Mackay, who usually plays in the forward line, made his debut as goalkeeper for St. Andrew's Club against the European Y.M.C.A. first eleven in a friendly hockey match played at King's Park yesterday afternoon. The Y.M.C.A. won by one goal to nil. Mackay was never really tested and had bad luck with the shot that did enter the net.

The Y.M.C.A. commenced with only eight men, having to rely on two forwards, W. J. Brown and A. L. Henry. It was during this period that Brown found the net with a shot scored from a difficult angle.

G. H. Fowler, R. A. Bates and S. Fowler arrived during the first half and completed the Y.M.C.A. line-out.

The Saints' forwards, with the exception of the opening minutes of the game, never looked like becoming dangerous and attacked very seldom.

Farmer, at centre-half, and Sommer, at right-back, repulsed the Saints' forward line, Farmer putting in some good clearances.

F. A. Broadbridge and E. H. P. White, the Saints' backs, both played hard in the defence.

Frequent offside by their forwards prevented several Y.M.C.A. attacks from materialising.

RUMJAHN AND MRS. CHIU PASS INTO SECOND ROUND

Fourteen couples have entered for the Colony Mixed Doubles Tennis Championship this year, and the draw, which was made at the Chinese Recreation Club last evening, gives promise of some very interesting matches.

H. D. Rumjahn and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chui and L. Goldman and Miss H. Hancock move through into the Hancock move through into the second round without opposition. Both these pairs are strong contenders for the title.

E. C. Fincher and Miss O. Daisiel, another pair who will need close watching, meet Paul Kong and Miss Cheung Woon-wai in the first round.

The complete draw was as follows:

FIRST ROUND

Lee Wai-long and Miss Ellen Tang v. T. A. Pearce and Miss H. Hancock.
E. C. Fincher and Miss O. Daisiel v. Paul Kong and Miss Cheung Woon-wai.
H. T. Armstrong and Mrs. P. P. Whitlam v. Capt. E. Manners and Mrs. E. Grimble.

SECOND ROUND

L. Goldman and Miss H. Hancock, bye.
H. D. Rumjahn and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chui, bye.
The first round of the championship has to be completed before December 15.

The Radio Sports Club and the Hongkong Police played on the Police Training School ground yesterday the Radio won by one goal to nil. Play was fast and exciting both sides pressing in turns.

M. H. Hassan, the Radio centre-half scored from a pass from Kitchell in the first half. After this interval the Police forwards showed better combination and tried hard for the equalizer but the Radio intermediate line proved the main stumbling block.

For the Police, Perkins at centre-forward played a sterling game while the Radio was best served by Hassan and Kitchell in defence.

Awar Singh and M. de Souza, a promising new player on the right flank, were the pick of the forwards.

Counted out: S.S. Yenton 89, A. Comte 86.

PONSFORD RETIRES

Testimonial Match In Melbourne

Melbourne, Nov. 20.

When the next cricket test matches between England and Australia are played, Australia will take the field without the services of Woodfull, Ponsford and O'Reilly.

Woodfull announced his impending retirement some time ago, O'Reilly announced his withdrawal from first class cricket a few weeks ago and Ponsford stated to-day that he would no longer be available for first class matches.

Ponsford's announcement was made at the conclusion of a testimonial match to Woodfull and Ponsford for their services to Australian cricket. The match was played between teams captained by Richardson and Woodfull. Woodfull's team won by seven wickets.

Batting first, Richardson's Eleven scored 104. Grimmett took five wickets for 64. Woodfull's team replied with 316 (Woodfull 111, Ponsford 83).

In their second innings, Richardson's men did much better, putting on 309. Richardson top-scored with 107 and Grimmett again took the majority of wickets, finishing up with four for 108.

Woodfull's team carried their score to 280 for three wickets. Brown made 102 and Ponsford 48.—Reuter.

WEST INDIES TOUR

SERIAL STORY

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

When DAN HLEKKER, publisher of The Blade, learns that CHARLES MORDEN, police reporter, has been mysteriously shot he decides to employ SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

MORDEN and been assigned to work all he could about FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, who had threatened to sue The Blade because the newspaper reported CATHAY had been arrested. Last it was proven that the man arrested, giving the name of CATHAY and accompanied by a girl called MAIRY BIRCH, was an impostor. The Blade published a retraction.

Then MORDEN found dead and a few hours later came news that CATHAY is dead—possibly poisoned.

SIDNEY GRIFF undertakes the case. He calls on CATHAY's doctor and then goes to see CHARLES FISHER, CATHAY's friend and lawyer.

CHAPTER XIII

GRIFF had been listening to the lawyer intently. "How long," he asked, "was this reporter in River-view?"

"I don't know. He made some investigation and made some comments. He spent most of his time in the office of The River-view Chronicle, a newspaper, by the way, which has been hostile to Mr. CATHAY's political candidacy for membership in the city council."

"Did that man," asked GRIFF, "call on you, counselor?"

"On me?"

"Yes."

"No, certainly not. He was collecting evidence which would have a tendency to undermine my client's reputation. Naturally, he would hardly have called upon me."

"You didn't know him then?"

"No."

"Perhaps then," said the criminologist, "you entirely missed the significance of the account in The Blade this morning of the murder of one of its reporters."

Charles Fisher gripped the edge of his desk. His head was thrust forward. His eyes fastened upon the criminologist's face and gradually grew wider and wider.

"Good heavens!" he said. "You don't mean to tell me... it can't be... it isn't... that is, it wasn't the same man?"

GRIFF nodded.

Charles Fisher got slowly to his feet. He mopped his forehead with a handkerchief, regarded GRIFF with wide, startled eyes.

"Good heavens!" he said.

GRIFF said nothing.

"Now," said Fisher slowly, "I can understand your interest in the matter. I understand who is employing you."

GRIFF remained silent.

The attorney looked at his watch, went to the window and stood with his back to GRIFF, looking down at the street. He turned at length to the criminologist.

"Has the newspaper," he asked, "any idea of the motive for the murder?"

GRIFF shrugged his shoulders.

"Really, counselor," he said, "I can't tell you just what the newspaper knows or what it suspects."

Charles Fisher made clucking noises with his tongue against the roof of his mouth and shook his head from side to side, after the manner of one who has heard most disagreeable news.

"This," he said, "is very likely to complicate the situation, to complicate it most dreadfully."

GRIFF got to his feet.

"Well," he said, "I've enjoyed meeting you, counselor. I just dropped in to say hello. This is Saturday and I presume you'll observe the usual half holiday."

"Is there," asked Fisher with a forced attempt at his old cordiality, "anything I can do to assist you, Mr. GRIFF, which will not in any way conflict with my professional obligations to my clients?"

GRIFF smiled at him.

"I think not," he said.

The two men shook hands.

GRIFF went at once to a public telephone, called the office of Dr. P. C. Cooper and explained to the nurse that it was quite important that he talk with Doctor Cooper upon a personal matter.

A moment later he heard Doctor Cooper's voice on the wire.

"This is GRIFF, Doctor Cooper," he said, "the criminologist who called on you earlier this morning."

"Yes," said Doctor Cooper in a tone that was calm and wary. "What is it you wish, Mr. GRIFF?"

"I just wanted to tell you," GRIFF said, "that I have been in communication with the counsel who is representing Mrs. Frank B. CATHAY, and that the CATHAYs are planning to have you cited before the medical board because of the statements you made concerning the symptoms of Mr. Frank B. CATHAY."

"Yes?" said Doctor Cooper in the tone of voice one uses in asking a courteous question.

"Yes," GRIFF said, "and I just thought, Doctor Cooper, that if a post-mortem should disclose that your diagnosis was correct and that of Doctor Amstead incorrect, it might go a long way toward eliminating the necessity for any defence upon your part."

GRIFF ceased talking and held the telephone to his ear. For a moment there was only the buzzing noise of the wire. Then Doctor Cooper's voice said in the same cautious, thoughtful tone, "Thank you."

There was a click at the end of the line.

GRIFF slipped the receiver back on its hook.

SIDNEY GRIFF's taxi cab deposited him at the wide entrance to the CATHAY mansion. GRIFF inspected the well kept grounds, the huge building which, despite its magnitude, seemed to blend harmoniously with the surrounding trees. The building looked as though it might have grown there.

"You want me to wait?" asked the cab driver.

"Yes," GRIFF said, and started up the long cement walk which led from the front of the house.

He had almost reached the porch when the door opened and a tall man with broad shoulders and a slight paunch which bulged out his waistcoat stepped with quick vigour from the house and turned sharply to the right, walking across the porch to the stairs which led to a driveway that came from the garage.

GRIFF called a low comment:

"Hello, Racine," he said. "You going to pass me up?"

The man whirled at the sound of the voice. His eyes stared at SIDNEY GRIFF with an expression of quick recognition which speedily gave way to wary appraisal. He turned and walked back toward GRIFF with a leisurely manner. The quick, purposeful stride of his stride was now only a slow, stately walk.

GRIFF watched him with eyes that twinkled with amusement, yet were cautiously watchful.

"Business here, Racine?" he asked.

Carl Racine stood with his feet planted slightly apart, his big shoulders squared, his eyes staring steadily at the criminologist.

"Business here, GRIFF?" he asked mockingly.

GRIFF nodded. "Yes," he said. "I want to see Mrs. CATHAY."

"Hardly a time for social visits," Racine pointed out.

GRIFF shrugged his shoulders in a polite gesture of dismissal.

"After all, Racine," he said, "that is a matter for Mrs. CATHAY to determine. If she has been able to see Carl Racine of the Racine Detective Bureau, she doubtless will be able to see me."

"Perhaps," Racine said.

There was a moment of silence.

"I wonder if you can tell me just what angle of this case you're working on?" Racine asked.

"How many angles has it?" GRIFF countered.

Racine frowned impatiently.

"Oh," he said, "I'm just a square-toed d.ck. I can't match wits with you if it comes to a matter of being indefinite in conversation. You don't have to tell me if you can't wait to, but don't be so damned superior."

"After all, you're only human, you know, even if you are SIDNEY G. GRIFF, the great criminologist."

GRIFF said nothing. His eyes held a twinkle of amusement.

"I thought," Racine said, "that you might like a chance to pool information on this."

"That's fair enough," said GRIFF, "that's fair enough. You start off. You tell me something, then I'll tell you something."

"That's a bargain," Racine said.

"Who are you working for?"

GRIFF's laugh was almost sarcastic. "So that was the way you wanted to pool information, was it Racine?"

A smooth running motor slid into view, stopped where the side steps of the porch met the driveway. The CATHAY chauffeur alid from behind the wheel, opened the rear door of the car and stared steadily at the two men.

"There is," said GRIFF musingly, "something strange about that chauffeur, Racine. Turn around and take a look at him. He wears the livery of a servant but notice the expression on his face. He's evidently very much irritated because we're talking together."

Racine did not turn, but he straightened abruptly and his tone became formal.

"He's in a hurry," he said. "He's under instructions to get me to a certain place. I've got to start. Goodbye, GRIFF."

Racine crossed the porch with long strides. The chauffeur stood at rigid attention, his face a mask. As the detective entered the car, the chauffeur slammed the door, turned to face SIDNEY GRIFF.

"You can't see Mrs. CATHAY," he said, jerking open the front door of the car. He did not wait for a reply, nor did he turn back for any instructions from the detective.

(To Be Continued.)

In the next installment GRIFF calls on Mrs. Frank CATHAY, beneficiary of her husband's million-dollar insurance policies.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

I want to clear up the king and queen showing of the Sims three-bid to-day. While it is true, you may not hold many three bids, when you do have one, you do not want to miss obtaining the maximum result.

The Sims three-bid should be made when the hand contains not more than three losers with a major suit as trump, or two losers with a minor suit as trump. The first suit named is the suit at which the final contract must be played.

In to-day's hand, South opens with three spades. The partner

♠ J 10 8 5	♥ Q 4	♦ 7 6 5	♣ K 10 2 2
♠ A K 10 7	♥ A Q J	♦ A Q 8	♣ A Q 3
♠ K J 9	♥ K 9 8	♦ K 9 7	♣ K 9 7
♠ 9 7 4	♥ 7 6 5	♦ 7 6 5	♣ 7 6 5

Duplicate—All vulnerable.
South, West, North, East
3 ♠, Pass, 3 N.T., Pass
4 ♠, Pass, 5 ♠, Pass
5 ♠, Pass, 5 ♠, Pass
Opening lead—♥ K. 10

should respond, first, when holding the ace of trump, with four spades. Not holding that ace, but holding any other ace, he should bid his highest ace first. But when not holding a single ace, as in to-day's hand, his proper response is three, no trump.

Now, when South bids four clubs, he is asking his partner if he holds the king of clubs. Holding the king of clubs, North's proper response is five clubs. South's bid of five diamonds is asking for the kind of diamonds. Without it, North simply bids five spades.

Suppose South's holding had been the ace, king, and jack of diamonds. He had already located the king of clubs and would now like to know about the queen of diamonds. After North's bid of five spades, denying the king of diamonds, South would bid six diamonds, asking for the queen.

If North held the queen, he would bid seven diamonds and the final contract would have been seven spades.

In to-day's hand, South has shaded his three-bid a little, but it seems rather justified, due to the fact that, if he can locate the king of clubs and the king of diamonds, he has a possible grand slam. So I do not criticize South for shading his bidding.

The Play

The play of the hand is not difficult. Still, a careless player would fail to make his contract. It looks as if South has two losing diamonds, because, when the seven of diamonds is led from dummy, East will play the ten. But why worry about guessing the diamond? The opening lead

CLOSE CONTROL OF FOOD SUPPLY

CHINA GUARDING
AGAINST FAMINE

Nanking, Nov. 20. With a view to regulating food supply throughout the country, and thus removing to some extent the danger of famine, the Nanking Financial Ministry has decided to create a special bureau in the Ministry which will be entrusted with the duties of facilitating the marketing and transportation of food supplies in various provinces. If found necessary, branch offices will be established at important centres in various provinces in order to facilitate its work.—Central News.

BRITISH FINANCES

LATEST EXCHEQUER
FIGURES

London, Nov. 20. Exchequer returns for the past week show that during the current financial year the total ordinary revenue, exclusive of self-balancing revenue amounted at November 17 to £368,478,414, which is £2,275,150 less than the amount collected at the corresponding date last year.

Expenditure for the same period, exclusive of self-balancing items, was £431,824,236, which exceeds the amount expended at the corresponding date of last year by £29,859,938.—British Wireless.

"ROMANCE" LAUNCHED

THIS MORNING'S CEREMONY

Using a hammer, tied with red, blue and white ribbons, Mrs. D. Drummond, wife of Mr. D. Drummond, Oriental Manager of the Canadian Pacific Steamship, smashed a bottle of Minchbury champagne (Rocky Hill, N.S.W.) and launched the brigantine "Romance" from A. King's slipway this morning.

Ideal weather favoured the occasion, and the new craft, built to the order and design of Captain E. P. Green, former commander of the R. M. S. Empress of Asia, glided smoothly into the water. Gaily bedecked with flags, the "Romance" presented a pleasing picture as she was brought in to moor alongside the pier.

Many visitors availed themselves of the opportunity of inspecting the sturdy craft in which Capt. Green and his 18-year-old son, Phillip, are to travel to Vancouver, thence to England and the tropics.

Following the christening ceremony a long string of crackers was fired and the "Romance" took to the water amid applause.

THE SPEECHES.

Later, Mr. Drummond, proposing the success of the new brigantine, congratulated Capt. Green on building the craft "out of his own head". Knowing the skipper as he did, he was sure that Capt. Green intended to operate the vessel according to his own ideas.

Captain Green, he said, had just retired from the service which he (Mr. Drummond) represented and he felt sure the best wishes of all on shore and afloat went to Captain Green and his new venture. He wished Captain Green and his family success, and expressed the hope that they would find romance, happiness and sweet contentment in their ship. (Applause).

Replying, Captain Green expressed hearty thanks to Mrs. Drummond for performing the launching ceremony. He paid a warm tribute to A. King and Chan Shun-fat, the builders, who had put in a lot of wonderful work. He had watched the building of the "Romance" and had seen the work put in.

"I think I can say that she is the strongest ship ever built in

FIVE MOTOR VESSELS

HARLAND & WOLFF
GET ORDERS

London, Nov. 20. It is stated that Messrs. Harland and Wolff, of Belfast, have secured contracts for five motor vessels.

Three of these, of 10,760 tons, are for the Blue Line New Zealand services, and two of 13,000 tons are for the Union Castle Line's intermediate service to South Africa.—British Wireless.

Hongkong, if not in the world, of that size," he concluded.

Among visitors present were Mr. A. L. Shields, Commodore of the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, Mr. H. S. House, Vice-Commodore of the Yacht Club, Commander and Mrs. W. G. Cowland, R.N., Mr. and Mrs. Monaghan, Mr. and Mrs. Costello, Mr. and Mrs. E. Spiers, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Stevenson, Mrs. E. Cock, Capt. Bayliss, Messrs. L. E. N. Ryan, H. R. Latham, E. Blackburn, P. Newman and V. Goulburn.

TRIAL TRIP.

When the ship is completely rigged up, Captain Green together with his son, will sail to Manila and back for a trial trip. This will be made on or about December 10, and subsequently the more hazardous trans-oceanic trip will be commenced.

The construction work of the new craft has been splendidly carried out by A. King, the well-known local yacht builder. It is 45 feet overall, with a wide beam of 14 feet 6 inches. It has three state-rooms, two bath rooms and a main saloon. The luxurious fittings include Chinese carved panels in the dining room and a carved table.

Four kinds of wood have been employed in the building of the "Romance": teak, mahogany, oak, and cedar. The hull is teak, the deck is mahogany, the stern and stem posts and frames, Oregon pine for the masts and spars, and camphor-wood for the figurehead, which will be named Frances, the Christian name of Captain Green's wife.

The mainmast is 36 feet in height and the foremast 34 feet. All fastenings are carried out in brass and every frame has a double cutting. The "Romance" is to be fitted with an Alfa Craig engine, manufactured in Chislewick, London.

Sir.—It is a pity that amateur shows cannot be given without petty jealousies and back-bittings. Just as all amateur productions are open to criticism, so are those who dare to criticise them in writing. Can't we be more broad-minded in these things and give credit where credit is due? Don't run a person down because he or she happens get a bigger "plum" than another fellow.

The general opinion is that the concert last Saturday was a success and when we come down to it, the Conductor, the principals, orchestra and chorus all thoroughly enjoyed it. Something should be said of the very hard work done by Mr. Anderson, Miller, the Conductor, and deserves a great deal of credit for the success of the production, so far as the public and the members of the Society forget these poor back-bittings and go to the performance on Saturday night determined to enjoy it.

ONE OF THE CHORUS.
